Dairymen Who Pioneered Protein Pricing See Results

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent
CHAMBERSBURG — A handful of southcentral Pennsylvania Jersey breeders are on the cutting edge of a local trend toward alternate methods of pricing milk, while enhancing cash flow for their efforts.
Success for dairymen pioneering this pilot program is spelled P-R-O-T-E-I-N.

Three years ago, members of the Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders watched with envy the $1.00/cwt. premium being paid for high protein milk in areas of western Pennsylvania milked. Destination for that protein-premium milk was four cheese plants, manufacturing primarily

Holly Tops Spring Holstein Show

HARRISBURG — The cow that caught the judges' attention as she first entered the ring, went on to be the grand champion of the Pennsylvania Spring Holstein Show here last Saturday. Lockway Holly Sexation, the Oceanview Sexation daughter out of the home bred Homic cow did it all for C. Richard and Georgianna Locke, Mercersburg.

In crowning the champion, judge Robert Fitzsimmons said he saw his champion as she entered the ring and watched for something better throughout the remainder of the show; but he could not find anything better. Thus the first place four-year-old with best udder in class became the senior and grand champion of the open show.

Following closely in front of a sparsely populated ringside crowd that included few spectators other than exhibitors, was Emar Loretta Lynn, owned and shown by Mark Campbell and Howard Hammond, Campbell Run Farms, Ford City. The first place five-year-old with best udder is sired by Shardale Arlinda Chict Jemini. The dam is Emar Marvex Lize.

The junior champion was Simalot Cristuna, the first place interme-

...ring heifer for Simalot dolsteins and Pinchurst Farms. Reserve junior champion was Royal Haven Boutique, the first place senior yearling heifer for Lynn and Bonnie Miller. A well-known veteran campaigner (Turn to Page A24)

Legislative Impact -- Theme Of National Farm Credit Meeting

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, WV. — Implementation of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 was the focal point last week at the annual meeting of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. Over three hundred directors, stockholders and management personnel of the Baltimore Banks and affiliated Associations reviewed the operational impact of the Act, which is expected to bring sweeping changes to the Farm Credit System over the next several years. Several speakers and panel discussion sessions addressed the impact of the legislation which some speakers called "the most significant and beneficial piece of Farm Credit legislation since the 1930s." When fully implemented, the act will provide financial strength and stability to the Farm Credit System, help protect eligible stock, permit local associations

PAFC: Educating Farmers on Cooperatives

BY LISA RISSER
LIONVILLE — Cooperation between people is a tradition that runs deep in our farming communities. Farmers have cooperated with one another to harvest crops, build barns, bring electricity and telephone power into rural areas, and more. Today, there are nearly 9,000 agricultural cooperatives conducting an estimated $69.2 billion worth of business.

Cooperatives also are an integral part of the non-agricultural consumer's life, with one in four Americans belonging to a cooperative. But most Americans, even those in farming who have the most direct exposure to cooperatives, don't know exactly how a cooperative works.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farming Cooperatives is out to change this. They're actively educating youth and young farming couples on the basic principles of cooperatives through workshops and seminars.

Last week the southeast region of PAFC invited young couples active in farming to meet with officials of various area cooperatives for a day of learning. The couples were sponsored by individual cooperatives such as Agway, Atlantic Breeders Service, Atlantic Dairy, Eastern Milk Producers, Farm Credit, and Sire Power.

RCMA Near Agreement With Hershey

BURLINGTON, VT. — Members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) Executive Committee meeting here this week announced that "a meeting of the minds" has been reached with Hershey Chocolate Co. that should result in an agreement with the giant milk dealer sometime next week.

"We had a very productive session last Wednesday at Hershey. We know that Hershey, an organization with a tradition as a fine market for milk, recognizes the situation facing farmers and the importance of RCMA premiums to the future of Northeastern Dairy farming. Lawyers from RCMA and Hershey will meet next week to iron out the details of an agreement," said William Zuber, RCMA president.

RCMA has 22,000 members in 11 Northeastern states. The organization was founded so that dairy farmers could have a say in establishing a fair price for their milk. In just five months RCMA has put nearly $10,000,000 into the hands of hard-pressed dairy farmers, who have seen the prices they receive for milk slashed in recent years.

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

Acres Corn Update: Corn futures closed from 1-1/4 to 2 cents lower on selling tied to pre-report position evening. Ideas that the USDA would lower posted county prices by as much as 5% kept buyers away from the market today, but these rumors were emphatically denied after the close. Further pressure came from reports of increased CCC catalog corn sales and weakening basis levels. After the close the USDA announced a sale of 105,664 MT of U.S. corn to "unknowns".

Acres Soybean Update: Soybeans closed slightly lower and above session lows with today's sales attributed to technicals and positioning in front of tomorrow's stocks and planting reports. Pre-release estimates show soybeans stocks as of March 1 to be 1.175 billion bushels which compares to last year on April 1 of 1.384 billion bushels. Soybeans acres have been estimated at 59.1 million which compares with final 1987 plantings of 57.4 million. The increased acreage will come from double cropping and a switch in parts of the southeast from cotton to soybeans because of the favorable price ratio.

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures closed from 1/4 higher to 1-1/4 cents higher, but well off session highs. Support came from news that the USSR would bid Thursday for 500,000 MT of hard red export bonus wheat and short covering in front of tomorrow's stocks report. Subsequent to the close the ASCS announced that it would end auctions from old catalogs. Pressure came from a slack near term export line-up. May traded as high as $3.04-1/4 and settled at $3.02-1/4.

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle futures closed today as pre-report liquidation pressured prices throughout the session. Further pressure came from sales tied to light boxed beef movement during the week. Spillover weakness from the live cattle pressured the feeders with losses in all options. Losses in the March feeder option were less due to possible increases in the cash settlement before its Thursday expiration.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to higher futures - steady lower Acres Hog Update: Live hog futures closed lower and near session lows pressured by possible effects of tomorrow's USDA Quarterly Hogs and Pigs report. The lack of significant buying added further pressure along with spillover from the other livestock pits. With the prospects for continued receipts and heavier weights, selling was active at lower levels. Bellies settled lower pressured by Tuesday's report and position evening in front of the long weekend.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to lower futures - steady to low

National Egg Market

Wed., March 30, 1988

Medium prices were lower in the Midwest, balance unchanged. The market tone was cautiously steady. Retail cartoned egg movement was primarily good to very good where widespread features prevailed, sometimes slow without specials. Supplies were generally adequate to fully adequate and clearing well except mediums in the Midwest and extra large supplies in the Northeast were occasionally barely adequate. Breakers remained unaggressive and planned reduced schedules. Light type fowl were irregularly available due in part to processor discrimination against flocks with discolored flesh from vaccination.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wed., March 30, 1988

Trading activity was light to fair and generally selective. Cutlets remained fully adequate at current price levels with some ongoing discounting in the 170's to clear inventories. Breasts were spotty in availability, but at least adequate for an irregular buying interest. Legs were fully adequate to ample, while leg quarters generally moved well at 18 to 19 cents. Wings were ample for a limited inquiry.

OPINION

The Easter Story

WHO hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.

Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities. the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken.

And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief; when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand.

He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities.

Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death: and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Inspect Pasture Fields

It won't be long before some permanent pastures will be ready to graze. I am afraid that some may be grazed before they are ready. However, another area that I would like to review, is that you should walk over the pasture areas before livestock is turned out. Remove all trash to prevent injury and poisoning. Unfortunately, people still use the rural areas to dispose of their solid trash. Some of this may contain glass or poisons that will be harmful to livestock. Remove the junk before the livestock has a chance to become involved. If there is any evidence in the trash reflecting the guilty party (addressed envelopes, etc.), this information should be given to local officials. Most township regulations do not permit the dumping of solid waste on private property. To Operate Machinery Sensibly

Farmers are always in a big hurry when the good spring weather arrives. As a result, they operate their tractors and other machinery at too high a speed. This presents safety hazards and is the cause of too many accidents. Grain drills and corn planters are designed for accurate planting, if operated at a normal rate of speed. Often in the rush of things, we travel too fast and the planting job is disappointing.

We urge farmers to take time to properly prepare and adjust their machinery and then drive at a speed that will give good performance. With many pieces of farm machinery the speed is listed on the manufacturer's directions. Take time to be safe and not sorry.

To Control Wild Garlic

Dairy farmers who pasture their milking herd have the most to lose if they do not eliminate wild garlic from their pasture fields. This fast growing wild onion is already growing in pastures and other grass areas.

The young plants are much easier to kill with herbicides than mature plants. We suggest that the plants be sprayed very soon with 2,4-D. This has proven effective in keeping the young plants from maturing; by spraying early in the spring the legumes in the pasture area will not be injured. Since the wild garlic plant is very well rooted, it may take several sprays over a period of two or more years to eliminate the weed from the area. Don't wait until the plants are mature to make this spray application. Follow label directions when applying any pesticide.

To Avoid Herbicide Residues

Evidence is showing us that residues of atrazine, simazine and to a lesser extent, bladex, are affecting subsequent crops in the rotation following corn. Even though no visual symptoms are evident, the sub-lethal residues, still present in corn field soils, are lowering yields of small grain and alfalfa. Consequently, we must make every effort to reduce herbicide carryover. Here are some recommendations:

* Soil test prior to the last year of corn in the rotation. Then apply all the lime recommended before the corn is planted. Liming will release any atrazine, simazine, bladex still tied up in the soil and help control corn crop weeds.

* Use a low residue herbicide program avoiding the triazines (above). Lasso and Dual would be choices to consider.

* To control broadleaf weeds that might escape, Banvel should be applied as a follow-up.

Always follow label directions when applying any pesticide.

THE LAST FRAUD

April 3, 1988

Background Scripture:

Matthew 27: 62 through 28:15.

Devotional Reading:

Romans 6: 1-1.

Essentially, it boils down to this: either you believe that death is the end, or you believe there is an existence of some kind after death. There is no one in the world today who can prove either of those beliefs. People can give you arguments pro or con, but they cannot prove them. Each of us must examine the evidence, make a choice, and live by the faith that we have chosen rightly.

Actually, there are a number of other things in life that we choose in pretty much the same way. Our vocation or spouse, for example — none of us can prove in advance that we have chosen rightly in either case. Yet, as important as these and other choices may be, none is likely to be nearly so crucial to our lives as this one. What we believe about death and its aftermath has a profound influence upon all that transpires before death. If the disciples of Jesus had not been convinced that he had survived the experience of death, there would not likely have been a Christian Church then or now. What we believe about both the aftermath of his death and ours is equally consequential.

AS SECURE

The Pharisees regarded Jesus as an imposter and we can at least understand their fear of fraud and their request to Pilate that the tomb of Jesus be sealed so that Jesus' disciples could not steal his body. Should that happen, they told him, "the last fraud will be worse than the first" (27:64). Are we any less fearful of being taken in by fraudulent or unfounded religious claims? Haven't we all seen enough fraud and sham in religion to make us permanently skeptical?

But one does not live by one's skepticisms. Eventually we have to choose and live by faith of some kind. So, it is one thing to have some honest doubts; but it is something else to have nothing but doubts by which to live. One of the best ways of working through a choice like this is to ask yourself how you would live with the alternative. How would life work for you if you lived with the conviction that death is the end? What would life be like? What would motivate you? If you can live by this conviction, then, as Pilate told the Pharisees concerning Jesus' tomb, "Go, make it as secure as you can" (27:65).

"JESUS MET THEM"

For millions of us, however, the Pharisees were never able to make that tomb secure enough. The evidence presented by the early church, the New Testament, and millions of others is that the tomb could not contain Jesus! The two Marys met the Risen Christ along the way and he told them to "go and tell my brethren to go to Galilee, and there they will see me" (28:10).

For many of us, it is the belief that death is the end that is really the greatest fraud of all.

Other Banks Will Lend You Money, Weather Permitting.

When it suits their profit motives, commercial banks are happy to make farm loans.

But let the least little cloud appear and their interest in you quickly disappears.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, has stood by farmers through all kinds of weather. For 70 years.

We've stood by you in the apple orchard and the hen house. In the potato field and tobacco barn. Something other bank officers find hard to do from behind a desk.

And because Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the farmers who use its services, you'll never talk to anyone who doesn't know a disc harrow from a wheel barrow.

So the next time you need a loan, you could take a chance on a fair weather friend. And maybe you'll come out okay.

But in the long run, you're better off with someone who's with you, rain or shine.

Agriculture Secretary Lyng Supports RCMA Concept

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a letter to a leading Congressman on the House Dairy Subcommittee, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng supports the concept of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, an organization of 22,000 Northeastern dairy farmers trying to establish a fair price for their milk.

Lyng wrote to Rep. James M. Jeffords (R-Vt.), the ranking Republican on the subcommittee, that "Producers should look to the market place for increased income by bargaining for a higher price. Over-order pricing is common in a number of markets, particularly in the mid-west, and this is a good example of farmers turning to the market for increased returns."

"Other than the endorsement 22,000 dairy farmers have given RCMA by joining, the support of Secretary Lyng is probably the most important that RCMA could receive. He's the top agriculture official in the number one agricultural country in the world," said William Zuber, RCMA president.

Rep. Jeffords, speaking at the Northeastern Dairy Conference being held today in Burlington, Vt., said that this endorsement should encourage the small number of farmers not in RCMA to join the organization.

The March 25th letter resulted from an earlier meeting between Lyng, Jeffords, Sen. Richard Leahy and a group of Vermont dairy farmers. During that session the dairy farmers were told that they should not expect a change in federal policy on dairying for at least three years. In recent years, due to surplus supplies from the west and mid-west, the minimum farm milk price has been slashed.

Steve Kerr of RCMA lead a group of 10 RCMA members from Vermont to Washington on March 3 to discuss the possibility of increasing farm income through legislative or administrative actions by the federal government. "The group asked what the outlook was for such changes. We were told that there is very little chance for action on the federal level," Kerr said.

Lyng pointed out in his letter that the federal price is not designed to be the price farmers receive for their milk. "As I stated when we talked, neither the dairy support price nor the market order prices should be viewed as the established price for dairy products," Lyng said.

RCMA is currently paying over-order premiums to its members collected from all fluid milk dealers in the Northeast except one -- Farmland Dairies of Wallington, N.J. While RCMA has put nearly $10 million into the hands of hard pressed dairy farmers in just five months, Farmland claims that RCMA is illegal and is not the right avenue for dairy farmers to use in getting a fair price for their milk.

"RCMA has the support of political officials familiar with the plight of dairy farmers and every major farm organization in the Northeast. More than 90 percent of the farmers in the region have joined our organization. Plus, approximately 150 milk dealers in the region participate in the RCMA premium program. Farmland wants you to believe they are the only people with the interest of farmers in mind. The truth is that Farmland's business interests come first, and they feel that breaking RCMA is in the best interest of their business," said William Zuber, RCMA president.

In fighting for fair farm prices, RCMA has filled a lawsuit against Farmland for not paying money owed dairymen and 165 RCMA members who previously supplied milk to Farmland are now diverting their milk to other dealers paying the RCMA premium.

'Don't Just Survive - Thrive' Young Cooperators Told

SOUTHAMPTON — Few would argue that agriculture is a high risk industry, but that fact alone should not deter farmers from trying to make a profit on their business, according to the vice president of the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives.

In a presentation titled "Don't Just Survive — Thrive," John R. Crowgey Jr. told a group of young farm couples attending Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's 1988 Young Cooperator Seminar that the key to profitability is a sound farm records system.

"People maintaining good records know where they are making money and where they are not," said Crowgey, who has been with the Farm Credit system for 17 years.

Developing a record keeping system serves two major purposes, according to Crowgey. First, it allows farmers to determine the individual profitability of their various enterprises, such as dairy, cash grain and steer feeding.

"Too many times," Crowgey said, "you may find that an enterprise you have had for years is not making money. Good records will help determine that fact."

Secondly, farmers can realistically evaluate their own financial position by reviewing their records. An accounting system provides a total view of the farm business, its production and profitability.

One accounting system that Crowgey recommends was developed by farm economists Thomas L. Frey and Danny A. Klinefelter. The two co-authored the booklet, "Consolidated Financial Statements for Agriculture."

The booklet presents "a valuable technique to managing a business," Crowgey said. Records provide production and financial data and help to measure efficiency. The result is profitable decision making.

Crowgey urged the young couples to review their financial positions before making capital investments in their farm operations.

"Ask whether or not an investment, such as a new milking parlor, will increase your profitability," he said. "If it's going to increase your profit and reduce your cost, then that's valuable to you."

Crowgey warned against extensive capitalization, saying it is "probably the biggest mistake that's been made in agriculture during the past 10 years."

Each farm has its own strengths and weaknesses, he said. And farmers need to evaluate their own ability or opportunity to pay off any debt they undertake.

"Match your debt load with your own personal managerial expertise," he said. "Do not make financial decisions based on the 'averages' or 'textbook' projections but on your own ability to take the risks associated with debt."

In addition to being in tune with farm finances, it is important to be aware of the overall financial condition of agriculture, Crowgey said. The same holds true for those people with whom farmers do business.

"Select a farm lender who understands the industry," Crowgey said. "Each loan officer needs to understand your business, and the bank needs to understand the industry in which you are operating."

Credit will be available, Crowgey said, but only to the efficient producer, not just the best producer. Success should be measured by a combination of farm production and profitability.

"You want to look at production and then measure the profitability of that production," he said. "If you do that, you will have access to all the capital you need."

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's Young Cooperator program is designed for dairy farmer members between 21 and 35 years of age. The Young Cooperator Seminar, held annually in March, focuses on cooperative business principles.

Farmland Premiums Top $5.25

Farmland Dairies continued its strong premium performance, mailing January checks in February. Farmland's performance stands in sharp contrast to weak co-op prices and falling premiums paid by other dairy processors. "We're leading the market," Marc Goldman, president of Farmland stated. "We're continuing to attract the best producers in the northeast. As always, independent dairy farmers supplying Farmland do best."

RCMA's December Premium Declines

Early in March, RCMA sent farmers a $.10/cwt premium check for December. An undated letter accompanied each check, explaining that increased milk handling by RCMA and the "extraordinary costs" of diverting milk caused performance to slip. The small check and curious explanation caused concern among dairy farmers, who wondered why the diversion, which did not begin until February, should cause a drop in December's premium. Others questioned why an increase in volume should lower premiums, since the premium is collected by the hundred-weight. There were no explanations from RCMA at the time of printing.

RCMA Bylaws Revealed

Publication of RCMA's By-Laws two weeks ago unleashed a flood of inquiries from farmers uncertain of the status of their milk checks. Many farmers, who had been assured by paid RCMA organizers that RCMA only had access to the premium check, now know that their milk checks are at risk. Some said they planned to consult an attorney to learn what the By-laws mean.

Supply Side Failure

RCMA and other market-distorting schemes are not the answer to the problems facing the dairy industry, according to Marc Goldman, who called them "a continued supply-side focus doomed to fail." The supply-side focus did not assure markets or maintain income. Supply-side measures promised much, but delivered little, he noted.

As proof, consider the decline in fluid milk consumption over the past 25 years. In 1964, per capita consumption of fluid milk topped 25 gallons; by 1987, it had fallen by 20% to just over 20 gallons. Meanwhile, carbonated soft drinks, boosted by a consumer-focused marketing strategy and billions of dollars of advertising, rung up record sales, and nearly tripled per capita volume during the same period. Soft drink consumption has grown from 17 to more than 42 gallons annually during the same period. It may rise higher as Coca Cola rolls out its innovative "Start your day with a Coke campaign."

"The dairy industry has taken customers for granted," Goldman complained. He called on all segments of the industry to work together to formulate a new consumer-driven marketing strategy.

Focus On Demand

In a letter to Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng, hand delivered in Washington, D.C., Marc Goldman called on the Secretary to institute mandatory processor payments to pay for a massive expansion of a fluid milk advertising campaign. (Write to Marc Goldman for a copy of this letter.) "We need more advertising in order to get more people to drink more milk which will result in more income to dairy farmers throughout the country," Marc Goldman said.

Farmland is also pushing ahead with new product introductions and plans to follow up its successful kosher milk introduction with additional new fluid products. "Coca Cola executives publicly aim to acquire a larger share of the consumer's stomach. We have to follow a similar strategy," Goldman argued.

Maryland DHIC Gathers For Meeting Before Merge

BY PAT PURCELL
WESTMINSTER - Members of the Maryland Dairy Herd Improvement Corporation gathered for the last time in their 35-year history on Monday. As of May 1, 1988 the Maryland DHIC will merge with West Virginia to become the Mid-East DHIC. Monday's meeting was to review past accomplishments and to honor the members and leaders of the Maryland organization.

Ellen Dixon, secretary to DHIC, was honored for her 26 years of outstanding service as the person behind the scenes who kept the 'wheels greased', according to Gene Long, Secretary-Treasurer. An appreciative and slightly tearful crowd joined Long in thanking Ellen and in honoring her with a portrait of her which will hang in the lab.

"A very significant part in that (Maryland DHIC) history was performed by our secretary Ellen Dixon, who has worked with the program and many of you dairy-men since 1962. We want to honor her for her great contribution to you and the DHI program in Maryland," said Long.

The Mid-East DHIC

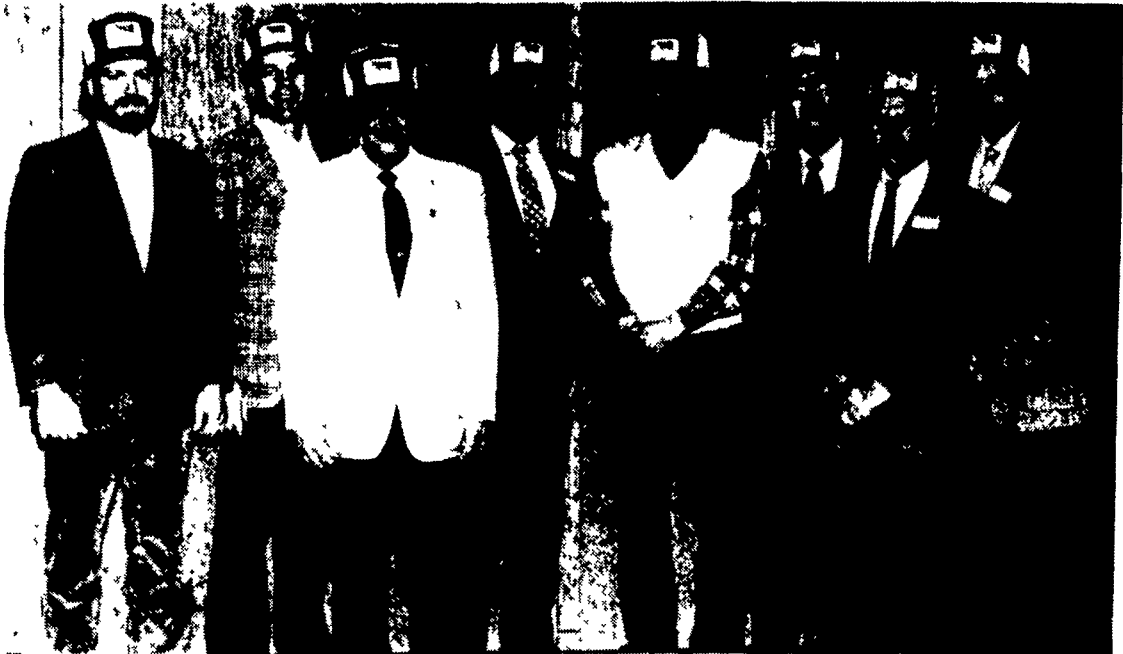

The vote to merge came with 89 percent of the members in favor of the move. Long said members could expect the same commitment from Mid-East DHIC in providing farmers with good service and timely and accurate information as they received from the Maryland organization.

"We plan to create a Sales-Service position within our organization. Part of the responsibilities of the person in that position would be to further promote DHI and sell DHI to non-members. But, we need your help. Each of you need to encourage your neighbor to become involved in DHI," said Long.

Dr. Lee Majeskie, Extension Dairy Specialist, University of Maryland, reported that 49 percent of the cows in Maryland are on test as of February. Majeskie encouraged members to use the information supplied by DHIC. He reminded dairymen they must DHIC supervisors with information if they want to get the full benefit from the reports.

"You must report to your supervisor how much you are paid for milk. Your monthly herd summary can tell how money you are losing to a high somatic cell count and mastitis problems, but only if you give him the dollar amount to plug in," said Majeskie.

USDA Sells Surplus Dairy Products To Mexico

WASHINGTON — A sale of $37.8 million worth of U.S. nonfat dry milk to Mexico was announced today by Acting Under Secretary of Agriculture Richard W. Goldberg. The sale of 30,000 metric tons of dry milk was made by the Commodity Credit Corporation to CONASUPO, the Mexican government's food purchasing authority. The dry milk was sold for $1,260 per ton free-on-board rail car at U.S.-Mexican border points. Goldberg said the sales price reflects the world market price for nonfat dry milk at the time the sale was negotiated, and is not to be considered as a current world price. Deliveries are scheduled through March 1989. CCC extended three-year deferred credit payment arrangements at commercial rates of interest, Goldberg said. The Food Security Act of 1985 mandated the export sale of 150,000 metric tons of dairy products per year for the three fiscal years ending Sept. 30, 1988. The sale brings the total amount of dairy products sold for export during fiscal 1988 to 77,520 metric tons.

Adams Extension Board Report

GETTYSBURG — A review of the federal budget for extension research and teaching and a report on the role and responsibilities of the Area Marketing Agent were featured topics when the Board of Directors of the Adams County Cooperative Extension Association met Tuesday, March 22, 1988, 7:30 p.m. in the Extension Office, Adams County Services Building, Gettysburg.

David Wenk, a delegate to the State Legislative Dinner, held February 23, 1988, Harrisburg, reported a good reception by Representatives Kenneth Cole and John Broujos and the staff of State Senator William Moore for the $9 million supplemental budget request for support of research. An outline of possible research projects was provided the legislators when the delegates reported on program activities of Extension.

Bonnie Kuntz, 6609 Oxford Rd., Gardners and Tim Weiser, 830 Old Rt. 15, York Springs, were appointed Adams County delegates to the annual meeting of the PA Council of Cooperative Extension Associations to be held Tuesday, April 5, 1988 at the Nittany Lion Inn in State College.

With Extension about to initiate multi-county agent programming, the committee heard Laurence Yager, Area Marketing Agent, with his base at the Adams County Extension Office for the past 24 years described his program and organizational role. He pointed out that as a staff member of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Penn State, his administrative track differs from that of the in-coming multi-county agents who will be supervised by the resident County Extension Director where they are officed.

Yager told how his program emphasis has changed with state and national priorities and in response to the concerns brought to him by farmers and agribusiness representatives in the region. This includes programming in direct marketing alternative agricultural enterprises, post harvest handling and food processing.

Mary Grim, appointed by Penn State's Dean for the College of Agriculture as a delegate to the Council on Agricultural Research, Extension presented a report on the research, extension and higher education budget request currently pending before the federal congress. Land-grant universities, nation-wide, have requested special funding for water quality research and educational programs. Funds for this work to date have come from state and local sources. Grim urged the board members to study the budget proposal and communicate their feelings to federal officials.

County Extension Director Thomas Piper announced that Extension Administration has requested the county staff to prepare a printed Accomplishment Report for distribution to county leadership in late 1988-89.

Piper invited the board members to attend the Water Quality Clinic which will be held Tuesday, April 5, 1988, in Bowen Auditorium on McCreary Hall on the campus of Gettysburg College. For convenience of the public, the program dealing with threats to drinking water quality and supply, point-of-entry treatment, and interpretation of water test results will be offered from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. and from 7:00-9:00 p.m.

Commissioner Robert Klunk announced the appointment of a Solid Waste Authority, reviewing the training and responsibility which will be expected of the members.

Jersey Production On The Rise

COLUMBUS, OH — The average production of Jerseys on official DHIR test hit an all-time high in 1987, according to Eugene P. Barton, Superintendent of Records of The American Jersey Cattle Club (AJCC), Columbus, Ohio.

The 44,875 Jersey lactations, the highest number of DHIR lactations processed in over 20 years, averaged 13,222 lbs. of milk and 623 lbs. of butterfat. These record levels easily surpassed the 1986 records of 13,068 lbs. milk and 616 lbs. butterfat.

"We started using AgMaster inoculants on our high moisture shelled corn two years ago and we added it to our haylage program last year. AgMaster really controls heating and caramelization in the silo. And the AgMaster liquid applicator unit makes it easy to apply the inoculant evenly to our haylage as it's blown into the silo. We tested our AgMaster-treated haylage when we opened the silo last fall. The results were the best we've ever had, even when compared to haylage put up under ideal conditions."

Protect the feed value of your haylage and baled hay with AgMaster inoculant.

Alfalfa, grasses and small grain crops give you more protein per acre than any other group of forage crops. And AgMaster inoculant helps you capture

RCMA Sets Premium On January Milk

BATAVIA, N.Y. — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc., an organization of 22,000 dairy farmers in 11 Northeastern states, announced today that members of the organization will receive 14-cents per hundred-weight for milk produced during January 1988.

The 14 cent premium is 4 cents larger than the December premium. The premium will add nearly $2 million to the income of hard pressed dairy farmers, who have seen the price they receive for their milk decline over $2.00 per hundredweight in the last 4 years.

According to William Zuber, RCMA president, in just five months RCMA has paid nearly $10 million in premiums to members. That figure is impressive by itself, and even more important when you consider the roll-over effect of that money in the economy.

"We've been told by economists that a conservative multiplier for the roll-over effect of these premiums being spent in the rural economy alone is 3.25 times. That means that in just five months, RCMA has had a $32.5 million impact on the rural economy of the Northeast," Zuber said.

RCMA is an organization designed to give farmers a say in establishing a fair price for milk. Cuts in the federal price for milk have meant steadily declining income for farmers in the 1980s.

"RCMA is proving that farmers can unite and receive a fair price for their milk. We're hopeful that we'll be successful in convincing companies like Farmland Dairies and Hershey Chocolate of the importance of these premiums to farmers and our economy. Once we have participation from these major milk dealers, and we complete a major membership drive now underway, premiums received by farmers will increase," Zuber said.

Heerlyn Named Dairy Product Sales Manager

SOUTHAMPTON — Henry Heerlyn has been named dairy product sales manager for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, according to Dr. Paul E. Hand, general manager.

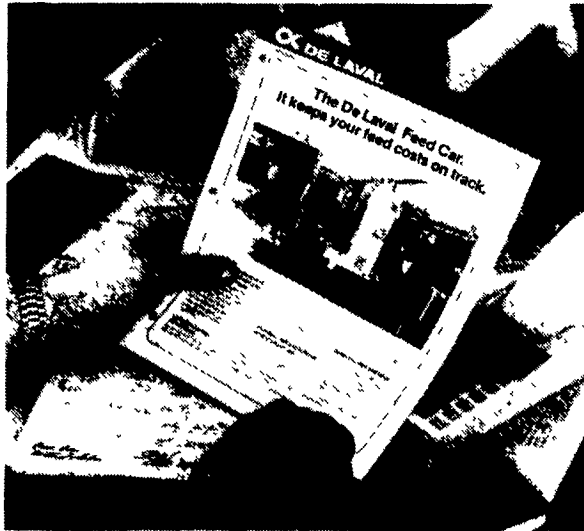

In this newly created position, Heerlyn will be responsible for developing a dairy products sales program for Atlantic and its wholly-owned manufacturing plant, Holly Milk Cooperative.

Heerlyn has 30 years experience in dairy processing and manufacturing. Most recently, he was employed by Michigan Milk Producers Cooperative and was responsible for manufactured dairy product sales, including cheese, condensed products and nonfat dry milk.

A native of the Netherlands, Heerlyn moved to the United States as a teenager. He grew up in Kalamazoo, Mich., and received a two-year degree in business administration and management from Valley Community College in Kalamazoo.

Heerlyn and his wife, Charlotte, are the parents of two children, Henry Jr. and Barbara. They reside in Newtown, Pa.

30 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

- Lancaster County tobacco farmers accomplished two leasts last year- they produced the least amount of tobacco since 1953 and they got paid the least for it since 1951.

The quarterly tobacco situation report of the U.S. Department of Agriculture shows that the total yield for Type 41-46 filler was 41.2 million pounds and that the average price was 22.2 cents a pound.

This was a drop of 9.8 million pounds from the 1956 crop, or about 19 per cent less than the year before. The price dropped by 7.5 per cent.

- Nearly all Pennsylvania farm products during the month ended March 15 averaged higher prices to farmers than a month earlier, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

Milk, the number one cash income of Pennsylvania agriculture, was 20 cents a hundredweight less at wholesale.

- Advertising bargains: from L.H. Brubaker: new GE dryer, $159; new GE washer, $209. From Ward Bottle Gas, Ephrata: low price from carload purchase black and white 36" Tappans, $106.

- One of the most tedious chores in farming is on the way out with a new process being developed by Eastern States Cooperative and the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is a method whereby seed potatoes are cut mechanically and shipped to the farmer ready to plant. The project is now several years old.

Pre-cutting in seed potatoes is possible because of a property peculiar to potatoes called "suberization." This means that a cut potato will grow a new skin after it has been cut if the proper conditions of temperature and humidity are available.

Farmers Learn To Calibrate Their Sprayers

Lancaster County farmers participating in Sprayer, Manure Spreader, and Planter Calibration Field Day learned how to properly calibrate their machinery. Here Michael Brubaker, right, president of Brubaker Agronomic Consulting, supervised a demonstration on calibrating a sprayer. Other sponsors were American Cyanamid, Master Farmer Ag Services, and Greystone Manor Farm.

the option of offering more flexible and competitive lending programs and other financial services, and give voting stockholder/borrowers an opportunity to decide the organizational structure of their local association.

Gene L. Swackhamer, President of the Baltimore Banks, summarized the Banks' and Associations' 1987 operations by saying, "There is continuing evidence that a real economic recovery is underway in the agricultural economy."

He said, "Our competitors have stopped asking 'Will the Farm Credit System survive this extended agricultural depression?'; now they only ask 'What structural and organizational form will the Farm Credit System ultimately take?'"

Swackhamer predicted the coming year would see the Farm Credit System become more aggressive and competitive in its lending efforts while improving operating efficiency.

Guest speakers at the meeting included: Dr. John F. Marten, Staff Economist with Farm Journal magazine; H. Brent Beesley, President, Farm Credit Corporation of America; and James A. Pierson, President, Springfield Farm Credit Banks.

The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, comprised of the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, and the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives, are currently lending some $2.5 billion to over 50,000 farmers and rural residents and 85 farm cooperatives in the states of Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Editor:

After reading about the new vegetable referendum and how the growers will benefit from it, I feel a few words should be said for the small grower.

This new referendum as now proposed would be unfair to the small grower. Since the small growers outnumber the large growers at least ten to one it is easy to see where the money will come from. With a flat rate of $25 per grower plus $1.50 per acre the grower with one acre will pay $25 per acre while the grower with 100 acres will pay only $1.75 per acre.

Of course with such an unfair assessment the committee has foreseen a problem in getting this voted in. So they came up with a smart plan to overcome this problem. The proposal must be approved by a majority of the growers who raise vegetables on more than 50% of the acreage. How can they determine the vote by acreage, while they tax the small grower ten times as much per acre as the large grower. Is this constitutional?

Much could be said about the folly of these referendums. They have almost completed their circle of farm products. If everything we produce has a tax taken off for advertising its just one advertisement against the other and we are back on the same level we started out on. The only people who really benefit are the administrators and the advertising industry. They are like parasites on the farmers income which is already much too low.

Can we afford another $25 taken out of our profits? Will the assessment stay at this rate or will it increase in size? Can we get rid of this program if we find it is of no value? Are we willing to sign away another segment of our freedom? These are some of the things we should think about when we get a chance to vote in April.

Let's face it, the only referendum we need is a referendum on referendums. This program would collect 2% of all monies collected by these programs. This money would be used to do research on the effects of referendums and whether they are of any value to the farmers. Also a large portion would be used to do studies on how to get rid of these programs if we find they are of no value. Of course delinquent payers would pay interest and all collection costs. This is no joke! Such a program would be entirely legal and feasible. I believe the majority of the farmers would support it.

As an ex-dairy farmer, I remember all too well the smooth words and promises we were given when we had a referendum on milk about ten years ago. Has their lot improved any since? How have the egg producers fared? Can we get the consumers to eat more of everything while the doctors are telling them to lose weight? What we farmers have to do to survive is to cut out the waste, lower the cost of production. We need to forget about fantasies and wake up to reality.

I would like to urge all growers to vote on this program. If you don't vote and it goes in effect it is your own fault. You may think they don't know you are out there and they won't be able to collect. Remember they can charge you interest and all collection costs if you don't pay voluntarily.

Morris Urges Octorara Board: Save King Farm

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent
ATGLEN — "I urge you with all the fervor at my command to change your views and your plans ... and save Mr. King's property," Rep. Samuel Morris of Pughtown (D-155) told the Octorara Area School Board last week.

Morris, Chairman of the Pennsylvania House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, spoke in support of a Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association petition protesting the condemnation of Naaman King's 102-acre West Fallowfield farm to build three new schools.

Approximately 100 citizens, many of them farmers supporting King's right to continue farming his land, attended the emotional meeting in Octorara intermediate school. King's farm is across Highland Road from the campus where all Octorara district schools are presently located. Route 41 borders the campus to the west.

Referring to last November's statewide $100 million Farm Preservation referendum, Morris said, "Here you are, going to take a piece of prime farmland, probably a great deal more than you originally planned ... in direct contravention to the wishes and will of the people of this state."

"If this property were in an agricultural security area, you'd have to go through the Agricultural Lands Condemnation Board and show that there was no reasonable and feasible alternative to what you're doing. It's unfortunate, in my opinion, that it's not in one of those areas," stated Morris.

"First of all, I want to thank the school for the ag department ... and the super job that they do," said Richard Breckbill, as he presented the 150-signature petition to the school directors. Breckbill is vice president and policy coordinator of Chester-Delaware County Farmers.

"We appreciate what you do for us as farmers and this is what brings our concern," Breckbill continued. "We're sitting in the garden spot ... with prime farming ground all around us."

Breckbill went on to read the petition that objects to the use of tax and bond issue money being used to fight a legal battle to take King's land. The petitioners call for a halt to condemnation proceedings and for the school board to purchase land, if needed, that is offered for sale; extend present structures; and conduct further studies on projected enrollment.

The school board filed a declaration of taking in Chester County Common Pleas Court last November 25. King's attorney, James Thomas of Lancaster, replied with preliminary objections to the condemnation on January 8. The matter is before Judge Charles Smith.

"I had nothing to do with asking for a petition from PFA. They did it on their own," King remarked following a dozen or so often heated statements from farmers and other supporters. At least two school directors angrily lashed out at the crowd, one calling those who believed King "fools".

After he had given all in attendance a chance to be heard, school board president John Hagen read a chronological summary of the board's actions in acquiring the farm. Insisting that the summary was not correct, King asked Hagen if someone else had written it. Hagen indicated that superintendent Richard McAdams was the author.

"I'm telling you it is the truth. I'm getting sick and tired of you lying about me, Naaman," McAdams declared.

Hagen indicated that the matter will probably be discussed further at the next school board work session, Monday, April 11.

Concerned About Safe Drinking Water

YORK — Concerned about the quality of your drinking water? If you depend on your own well or spring, you should be.

"The quality of water from a private supply is the responsibility of its owner," says Dr. William Sharpe, water resource specialist at Penn State University. "If you don't test your water, no one else will."

Drinking contaminated water can be a health risk, Sharpe points out. "The Safe Drinking Water Act established standards for water quality, if water doesn't meet those standards, it could cause problems for those drinking it." As an example, he notes that water with high levels of lead can retard the mental development of children who drink it.

To insure that your water is safe to drink, you should have it tested periodically at a certified water-testing laboratory. Sharpe recommends that water be tested for bacteria and nitrates at least once a year and for other chemicals at least every three years.

In addition to potential health problems, poor quality water can have other negative effects. "Water contaminated with iron can cause staining problems, and water with a low pH can corrode pipes," says Sharpe.

On April 28 residents of York County will have an opportunity to learn about managing their water supplies. Dr. Sharpe and other water quality experts will speak and be available for consultation at the "Safe Drinking Water Clinic" to be held at the York County 4-H Center in Bair. The clinic is free and advanced registration isn't necessary. The program will run from 1:00 to 3:00 pm and be repeated at 7:00 to 9:00 pm. For more information contact the York County Cooperative Extension Service at 757-9657.

PAFC: Educating Farmers

fessor of agricultural education and agricultural economics extension with Penn State. "It is a unique and distinct kind of corporation." In a general corporation, stockholders benefit through profits that take the form of dividends. In cooperatives member/users benefit through a more profitable farm.

A cooperative, as further defined by Doran, is a legal business enterprise owned and controlled by its member/users. It is operated for them on a cost-of-doing-business basis, and the savings are returned to them in proportion to use. The final object of the cooperative is the maximum profit from farming.

"The basic motive of cooperatives is profitability," said Doran. "But what they're really after is improving quality of life."

Most cooperatives run on principles developed in the nineteenth century by a group of English factory workers who were interested in operating a grocery store for themselves. These guidelines, known as the Rochdale Principles, include: •Democratic control—ownership and control by the members with a one-member one-vote principal or voting proportional to use of the cooperative.

•Open membership—anyone who wants to join a cooperative may do so.

•Business on cost objective—members share profits or savings based on use of the cooperative.

•Limited return on investment—Although cooperatives may pay dividends, few do as their main goal is to provide economic benefits for their members.

There have been several federal legislative acts that have helped the development of cooperatives. Among these is the Capper-Volstead Act of 1922 that gives farmers a limited exemption from the antitrust laws, the Agricultural Act in 1929 that established the Farm Credit Association and the Emergency Relief Appropriations Act of 1935 that established the Rural Electrification Administration to extend loans to rural electric cooperatives.

Round table discussion

Attendees got a chance to discover more about individual cooperatives when they split into four groups to talk with cooperative officials. They discussed the functions of marketing, supply and purchasing, and service cooperatives and what the responsibilities of a director are.

"What were turbulent and trying times in the 60s and 70s would be considered tame compared to the changes that have taken place in the past five years," said David W. Simpson, vice president for education administration with American Institute of Cooperation. "Change best describes agriculture."

In order to survive change, cooperatives must develop a future perspective, according to Simpson. "Cooperatives must develop strategies for strength or dissolve."

It is important that cooperatives survive so that the family farm can survive. The economic benefits that a cooperative can provide its member/users can help them survive on the world market. A healthy perspective on the future should include financial management skills, production efficiency, marketing strategies, and political involvement.

"A cooperative won't survive if it targets only the top one percent of producers," stated Simpson. "It has to serve both ends. Cost breaking for the large-volume producers is in the interest of the small guy as well because without the volume the big guy brings, the cooperative wouldn't be able to help the little guy as well."

The way that people consume food will change marketing and production strategies, according to Simpson. "Farmers should produce according to market wants. In addition, contract agriculture is coming."

Many of the changes that Simpson sees coming, he believes won't happen without the right political environment. The passing of a long-term farm program will help agriculture be competitive on the world market. "You and your cooperative should get involved in the political arena," he declared. "We have as much at stake as anyone else."

Political involvement should be at the grass roots level as well as the state or federal levels. Simpson advised farmers to become directly involved with the management of their cooperative because "you have the power to change the attitudes of your cooperative."

Del-Myr Farm Takes Management Award

BY SUE CROW

Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, MD — The top herd for the Dairy Management Award was Del-Myr Farm. This award is based on all the facets of management from the production side to the calving and breeding statistics throughout Carroll-Baltimore counties.

President Steve Wilson honored some of the top herds from the 103 herds that make up the two counties. The top herd for milk, fat and protein production went to Del-

Myr Farm, Roger and Jeff Myers, with a record of 21,959m 3.63% 797f 693p on 60 cows. David Zimmerman had the highest increase in milk and fat production from last year to this year with 4,772 lbs. of milk and 181 lbs. of fat. In the Guernseys the herd with the greatest increase went to Richard Flickinger with 4,971 pounds and in fat it went to William Warns with 161 lbs.

The following is a listing by age of the top cows for milk production:

Top cow for milk	2 year old	Record

Md. Sunset View	Jersey	18,330m 861f
Whispering Springs Farm	Red and White Holstein	20,040m 825f

For the second year in a row, the top herd in the nation for both milk and butterfat was Forest Glen Jerseys, owned by Stan and Dan Bansen, Dayton, Oregon. Their 246 completed lactations averaged an astounding 18,335 lbs. milk and 895 lbs. butterfat.

Running a close second in average milk production was The Jersey Nook of Ralph and Betty Reichart, Riley, Kansas. Their 37 completed lactations averaged 18,157 lbs. milk and 821 lbs. butterfat. Second place for butterfat average was claimed by Comfort Hill Jersey Farm, Vergennes, Vermont. Owned by Jeff Chapple and managed by David Parkinson, their 56 completed lactations averaged 855 lbs. butterfat and 17,984 lbs. milk.

Jersey officials credit this rising productivity, coupled with the increasing value of high solids Jersey milk, for a revival in the interest in Jerseys. Participation in nearly all AJCC programs has been a near record levels.

Italian-type cheeses.

Members of the CVJB asked their national breed marketing specialists for advice on pursuing a similar program to reap the benefits of their high protein production. Consolidate a load, they were told, and offer it to possible buyers who could benefit from the additional protein in higher end-product yield.

"They also suggested that the best route to go would probably be with a co-op, for their marketing and leg work expertise," recalls Lester Martin. Martin, Chambersburg Jersey breeder and past president of the Cumberland Valley group was one of the early leaders of the protein-pricing approach.

"We were looking for anything, even just recognition that protein has a value," relates CVJB member Bill Dietrich, who milks 60 Jerseys on his Newville farm.

Initial meetings with potential marketing organizations proved fruitless and frustrating, protein promoters remember. Hopes for a direct market with Jefferson Cheese, at Hagerstown, Maryland, seen as a potential purchaser for a high-yield load of milk, never materialized. Jefferson had paid a protein premium in the past to its own independents, but the Grade B market return, even with protein bonus, offered no come-on to those producers geared to Grade A prices.

But the several year "brick wall" of protein-pricing resistance crumbled in the spring of 1987, when Turkey Hill Dairy, of Lancaster County, released its producers. Attempts by Jersey shippers in that market to establish a protein pricing program meshed with the overtures being made by the Cumberland Valley breeders. A contact made to Dairymen, Inc., finally struck paydirt.

"Dairymen realized that we had a point, and deserves credit for looking at this," says Dietrich. The cooperative's Middle-Atlantic division, based in Sykesville, Maryland, met with interested Jersey Breeders and protein marketing specialists from the national breed organization. Working together with Jefferson Cheese, they studied protein pricing, anticipated yields, and came up with a workable program.

According to Ernest Yates, Dairymen's field service director, encouragement was already coming from members to look at protein pricing. The key obstacle was in collecting milk from the scattered Jersey milk producers onto a single load. This would facilitate marketing on a protein basis.

By November, negotiation had replaced frustration for the protein proponents. An initial load of about 50,000 pounds every other day, from 13 Dairymen producers, would begin pickup in Lancaster County, and run a more than 300-mile, one-way route. Destination was Jefferson's Hagerstown facility, which had agreed to a 12-cent-per-point above 3.2 percent protein premium, balanced with a sliding scale Somatic Cell Count.

Increasing SCC counts reduce proportionately the end-product yield. To encourage high quality, counts in the 600,000-700,000 range reduce the per-point premium to 9 cents, from 700,000-800,000 to 7 cents, with no premium paid on milk with SCC over 800,000.

In addition, protein load shippers had to absorb extra hauling and lab costs incurred in assembly of the load and testing for protein.

Average test in November was 4.02 percent, earning a 98-cent/cwt. premium. Hauling cost 37.2 cents, plus a lab charge of 3.2 cents, and an average net of 57.8 cents/cwt, weighed by each producer's own lab and protein results.

Protein tests dropped slightly in ensuing months, but hauling and lab charges did likewise, as volumes increased. Net average premiums for December and January were 56.4 cents.

Increased volume resulted in startup of a second route in February with neither route completely filled by month's end, February hauling came in at 39.4 cents; protein shippers netted an average of 42.4 cents.

"As costs can be gotten lower, nets will be higher," notes Yates. "We're looking to fill those routes; there's value in the marketplace for high protein milk and we can get that value through this program."

Outspokenly enthusiastic about the program is Ginger Myers, of Littlestown. She and her husband John, president and protein program contact for CVJB, became discouraged at times over earlier lack of interest by marketers in considering a protein bonus approach.

"We can't say enough good about this program and about Dairymen," praises Myers. "They were the only ones willing to give this a try; Ernie Yates has been so good about working with us."

She quickly points out, however, that protein pricing became reality only because the Jersey breeders agreed to go as a unit to a market that would work with them. For Myers and others, that meant switching some long time marketing allegiances.

In addition to the welcome bonus in the milk check, Myers sees other side benefits among the Jersey and Guernsey shippers currently in the program.

"There's a lot more optimism with people on these loads than with almost any other dairy group you meet with. It's also expanding our market for colored cattle; we're excited about it," she adds. "Jersey milk is best used for manufacturing purposes; there's a satisfaction in knowing where it's going and what it's being used for."

On farm management has tightened as well, believes the Adams countian. With premiums tied to SCC, details such as udder clipping and clean, dry teats command extra attention.

While they welcome current discussion aimed at altering federal order pricing to a component formula mechanism, some producers reaping current protein bonuses have reservations about the proposal. An Order 4 hearing on a change to a component pricing formula is reportedly planned for September. The formula would affect only Class II, not fluid, or Class I, pricing.

"It's a tremendous idea to be looking at an order recognition of components," believes Bill Dietrich. "But I'm not sure this is the best approach."

"Under the current program, we're looking at more money from a buyer. The proposal looks at redistributing the money that's already there. If I were milking cows below the 3.1 percent protein level, I'd be concerned," Dietrich asserts.

Lester Martin assesses the order change proposal as aimed more at a Solids Not Fat pricing, offering more benefits to powder plants than cheese manufacturing.

"It's probably the best route to get component pricing across the order," figures Martin. "The bad thing is that the same money is

Beef Checkoff Committee Named

HARRISBURG — Agricultural leaders from the state's livestock and dairy industries and state government today announced formation of a Beef Checkoff Campaign Committee to make producers aware of the need to continue the Beef Checkoff promotion and research programs.

The program is subject to a national referendum on May 10, 1988. All livestock producers who own cattle have the opportunity to vote on the future of the program.

The committee co-chairman, representing the beef, dairy and veal industries which participate in the program, are Paul Heffner, Chairman of the PA Beef Council, Bill Nichol, Executive Secretary of the PA Holstien Association and Nelson Horst, President of the Keystone Chapter of the PA Veal Growers Association.

"The Beef Checkoff has received support from every level of our farm community," Heffner said. "The members of this Committee have organized to insure that all farmers who are investing in the program know what it does and understand their stake in a continued effort to promote our products."

"The dairy industry recognizes the need to help market our products, and is working hand-in-hand with the cattle industry to generate profits through this program," said Nichol.

Horst said the Committee would urge all producers to "be sure to take time and vote May 10." He said, "Veal, beef and dairy producers all depend on each other, and this program gives us a chance to work with each other to increase sales of beef and veal."

"Producers are voting on their own economic future May 10, and that's only right," the three said. "Producers run the program, they make the decisions on spending funds, and work with each other through facts, promotion and advertising to highlight the importance of beef and veal to proper health and nutrition."

Other members of the Committee are: Joyce Bupp, Lancaster County producer; Tom Calvert, PA Livestock Association; Allen Deiter, PA Farmers' Union; Conrad Grove, PA Cattlemen's Association; Dennis Grumbine, PA Swine Breeders Association; Wayne Harpster, Huntingdon County producer; Hon. Samuel Hayes, PA House of Representatives; Bill McCoy, Lancaster Stockyards; Sheila Miller, PA Polled Hereford Association; Hon. Sam Morris, PA House of Representatives.

Also, Dick Newpher, PA Farmers' Association; David Reinecker, PA Pork Producers Council; Obie Snider, PA Dairy and Allied Industries Association; Hon. Patrick Stapleton, PA State Senate; Hon. Noah Wenger, PA State Senate; Charles Wismer, PA State Grange; and Hon. Boyd Wolff, PA Secretary of Agriculture.

The Checkoff Campaign Committee will seek to organize a local grassroots campaign, with involvement at the county level — letting farmers tell their neighbors about the successes of the program. The three co-chairmen noted that the Beef Checkoff is locally run, with up to 50 percent of the funds controlled by the PA Beef

Council. Producers' funds are used to finance a wide variety of local and statewide programs as well as the national promotional and research effort.

"We want this grassroots effort to explain the mechanics of the program to the more than 30,000 eligible PA producers," the co-chairman said. "The program is planned and operated by producers — we're making the decisions about how our money is spent."

"Everyone pays $1 per head, even importers, and our money goes to promote beef, not bureaucracy. Less than five percent is used for administrative costs. And funds are used for research, promotion, advertising, and nutritional education."

Since the Beef Checkoff Program began in 1986, beef consumption has increased by an average of four percent, as has consumer acceptance of beef.

The Beef Checkoff Campaign Committee's members are volunteers, with funding from voluntary contributors among industry, organizations and producers.

Dairymen Who Pioneered

"I can see the extra dollars coming from cheese in my milk price now. It's hard for me to see how any extra dollars will be gotten from the proposed order change; I would expect we might get fewer dollars than we're getting today under a re-distribution formula. Someone is going to take a pile less money."

Martin further expresses concern that a proposed 18-cent/point protein differential, above 3.2 protein, may be misleading and "just a figure."

Blueprint for the Order 4 proposal to change to component pricing is drawn from the formula used in the Great Basin Order of Utah, Nevada and parts of Idaho and Wyoming. Realignment of that federal order to a component pricing mechanism, according to Martin, took 48 months from start to finish.

Ginger Myers believes that several factors shape a different marketing scenario in Utah and Nevada than that in Order 4. Class II utilization is somewhat higher in the Great Basin order, with fewer diversified, high population markets to service than in the Northeast. Myers also cites overall protein levels as generally lower in the Northeast than in most of the rest of the country, in spite of a high concentration of colored cows.

Not all producers who looked at and promoted designing the protein premium load have joined up. Franklin County dairymen and milk tester George Christman milks about 40 Jerseys along with his 110 Holsteins, and has encouraged producers to look at the premium program. But, sign up by Christman with the high-protein load would necessitate changing markets, installation of a separate tank to split production and extra pickup and haul charges. Pencil pushing says the premiums thus far won't pay him to make the change. Still, he remains a firm advocate of protein premiums and credits National All-Jersey's Calvin Covington for his guidance in establishing the present program.

"In some areas of the country, as close as New York, two and three co-ops are reportedly working together on these kind of programs," reflects Lester Martin. "If they're doing it in New York, why not here in Pennsylvania?"

Rules Set For Beef Checkoff Vote

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Beef Council today urged cattle producers to take part in the national referendum on the producer-run Beef Checkoff Program and make sure the program continues to serve Pennsylvania's beef industry.

Bob Coleman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, said the U.S. Department of Agriculture has finalized rules for the checkoff referendum, which will be held May 10.

The program will be continued if approved by a simple majority of persons voting in the nationwide referendum. Under the rules, persons owning cattle between October 1, 1986 and March 31, 1988 are eligible to vote in the referendum. Each person owning cattle is entitled to one vote.

Registration and voting will both take place May 10 during normal business hours at county extension offices, with each producer voting in the county where he or she resides. Coleman noted that producers must certify that they were engaged in cattle production during the period from Oct. 1, 1986 to March 31, 1988. Ballots from the referendum will be turned over to the ASCS County office for counting, with results expected by May 24.

Coleman said the referendum makes provision for producers who are unable to vote in person, by permitting absentee voting. To register for this, eligible producers must request and obtain a combined absentee registration form and ballot from the state extension service office. Absentee ballots must then be received in the county extension office by the close of business May 3.

Coleman said, "Beef, dairy and veal producers all have an investment in their future in this producer-run program. The PA Beef Council urges all producers to learn about the program and its accomplishments and to vote for our future on May 10."

THE LAWS OF NATURE

And God's other laws cannot be transgressed without a penalty. Chemicalized poisoned food makes people sick and insane, some are put in asylums and some run free to vandalize and rape; and livestock are unhealthy with serious problems.

The sea life is diseased, dolphins and fish are dying even in local ponds. A rabies epidemic in wild life is giving it to farm animals and pets, endangering the life of your family. See Lancaster Farming, March 26 issue, page A-28. The rabies stricken wildlife eat your poisoned crops, drink your poisoned water, or eat your dead animals. You are fortunate you are living long enough to see your mistakes and repent.

The poisoning need not be. Our customers are getting top crops - some 250 to 300 bu. corn per acre, 29% protein hay, 90 bu. soybeans per acre, 3 times the average sugar reading in alfalfa, eliminating bought minerals and still have 19,100 lbs. herd average on 230 cows. It is in the feed!

Don't be pessimistic because some farmers didn't get results years ago. We have Ag Progress now with much better materials - fast results - no need for pesticides in alfalfa and nearly all vegetables. There is no excuse to poison your livestock, family and neighbors. And our price is lower than chemicals with our new products. The best results cost the least. What folly not to accept it! Too many people don't accept it because this message doesn't come from the people who they expect to teach the truth, but have money interests.

The Families Who Made A Banner Year For Crawford County Grange

BY CAROLYN HILSDON GILLES
Crawford Co. Correspondent
MEADVILLE — Crawford County made quite a name for itself in State Grange competitions this past year when it walked off with several coveted awards: Pomona Lecturer of the Year, Best of Show in both family and individual talent competition, and runner-up individual Best of Show. To Crawford County's Pomona Master Roger Williams, it was like a dream come true. Especially when the State Lecturer award went to his wife Betty Lou.

Roger Williams, Master of both

Pomona 26 and Vernon 936 Granges, is a 38-year Grange veteran, but wife Betty Lou is relatively new to the organization. When she married Roger in 1981, she realized that if she intended to spend any time with him, she had better get involved in Grange. But she doesn't just hang on Roger's shirt-tail. Each is very busy with his/her own Grange and community responsibilities.

Roger is proud of the fact that, in a very short time, Betty Lou has been elected to one of the most responsible positions in the county Grange system, that of Pomona Lecturer. It befalls the Lecturer to build membership participation through educational and/or entertainment programs. Said Roger, "It's more than just reading a poem or playing a game." In earlier days of Grange, he said that the program might have consisted of discussing a farming problem, but today's Grange members are less farm oriented. It's up to the Lecturer to select programs to appeal to the move varied interests of today's members.

Grange has also led Betty Lou into greater community involvement. Vernon Grange, the Subordinate Grange to which she and Roger belong, sold daffodils for the American Cancer Society as a community service project. Betty Lou later became Crusade Chairman and is now President of the Board of the American Cancer Society--Crawford Unit. In addition, she serves on the Family Living Advisory Board for Crawford County Extension and is a Democratic Committeewoman.

Roger commends her for showing good common sense when it comes to her program planning and he attributes many of her innovative ideas to the fact that she is a new member without a lot of "used to do's" inhibiting her. In addition to serving as Secretary for Vernon Grange, she is also Chairman of Community Service. In 1985, the year the tornadoes hit Crawford County, Vernon Grange was third in the state for community service.

As soon as Betty Lou was elected as Pomona Lecturer, she made it her business to read the Grange handbook to understand just what her duties were. Then she set to work planning programs, assembling a Lecturer's yearbook, coordinating visitation programs with the Lecturer's of the Subordinate Granges, and recruiting talent for the State Grange art, photo and talent contests.

Which brings us to the Egyud family of Conneaut Lake, Crawford County's entry into the state talent competition, and Pennsylvania's entry into National Grange competition.

Ralph and Sue Egyud hail from Long Island, both from musical families. They met when Sue and her sisters joined the church folk Betty Lou and Roger Williams have made Grange a big part of their lives. Roger serves as Master for both Pomona 26 and Vernon 936 Granges and has held a variety of other offices in his 38 year affiliation. Betty Lou, a Grange member only since their marriage in 1981, has become committed with equal fervor serving as Pomona Lecturer, Secretary of Vernon Grange and also their Chairman of Community Service.

choir led by Ralph. Sue came to Crawford County to study violin and vocal music at Allegheny College and the two decided to settle here in 1976. They chose Crawford County for two reasons: because of their commitment to The Church of the Firstborn, Int. of which they are charter members; and because they believe that this rural county is an excellent environment in which to raise children.

After college, Sue spent four years playing in the Erie Philharmonic Orchestra, then two as activities director at a nursing home. With daughter Becky and son David, Sue now has an active music ministry in local nursing homes. Sue said that some people are repulsed by the aging process but her kids feel comfortable visiting nursing homes.

The Egyuds sing for church worship, around the house and in the car. And, although Ralph and Sue often sing together, they never performed as a family until they became Grange members. At their first meeting, they were called upon to provide entertainment for Grange Visitation and then urged by fellow Grange members to compete in the Grange talent competition.

Sue and Ralph put together a medley of worship songs for a family talent entry. In addition, Sue prepared a solo on the violin and Ralph chose to perform a vocal piece that he had composed himself.

When the family sings, Ralph plays the piano and sings harmony with Sue, while Becky follows eight-year-old David's strong voice singing melody. They sing with confidence and joy, with good stage presence and motions that add to the entertainment value, especially when done by 4-year-old Becky.

Their talent took them to the top of county competitions, then to districts in Lawrence County, state competition in Butler and finally, to the National Grange Talent Contest in Syracuse, N.Y., where they placed third in both the family and individual talent categories.

The Egyuds had terrific support at each level up to nationals where they drew exciting audience response. Ralph and Sue have performed in concerts and plays for years, but they have never experienced anything like that evening in Syracuse. Said Ralph, "It was a banner night."

But they weren't just in Syracuse to win. Serving the Lord in their music ministry comes first. Ralph and Sue made this clear to the children when they went into competition.

The two do a good job at whatever they do. Ralph is presently a retail manager for Atlantic Refining and manages a gas station. Sue works for the same company and is in line for assistant manager's training. She appreciates the flexibility of her work schedule that gives her quality time with the kids and that it's a job you can "leave there" at night. But it is clear that these jobs finance what is really important in their lives--music ministry. They are a means to an end. Serving the Lord is first.

The Egyuds became Grange members due to "a persistent Assistant Steward" who was also their "biggest fan and motivator for entering the talent competition." Trail blazers that they are, they chose to join a new Grange, Lakeland 2095, where Sue has just been elected Lecturer. Said Ralph with pride, "We're cooking at Lakeland." The new Grange won top honors for their fair display this year, then went on to "sweep the entire state talent competition."

But the Egyud family has no grange aspirations for the future. They are already doing what they want to do--music ministry. Sue and Ralph are committed to their church and their biggest dream is to see their music ministries grow. They both compose music and someday hope to publish. As for Becky, she's looking forward to starting school in the fall and riding the bus. And David wants to someday be a worship leader...or a baseball player.

The Egyuds are a good example of something Roger Williams pointed out regarding the underlying principle of Grange. It provides a wonderful opportunity for the family to do things together. Grange stands for traditional values of family, Christianity and patriotism. Ralph says, "The country needs the Grange. There is a whole generation that has lost rural family values that need to be restored."

Gonna Make A Recipe - Sue accompanies 4 year old Becky on the guitar as she sings "The Recipe Song," and "He's a Lion In the Tribe of Judah," two of her favorites. Becky joins Sue weekly in her music ministry to local nursing homes.

The Egyud Family re-enacts the "Army of the Lord Medley" they performed to win Best of Show in the family category of State Grange talent competition. David's strong singing voice provides a good melody base for little Becky to follow against the harmony provided by Sue and Ralph.

By Michelle S. Rodgers

Berks Extension

Coming and Going

It was a tough morning. It was the first morning that my daughter seemed to mind that I was going to work and she was staying with her child care provider. There weren't any tears or screams, it was more a tugging at my arms and more so a tugging at my heart. It was a fleeting moment followed by a baby teeth smile and wrinkle of her nose.

Parents all across the country are sharing their mixed feelings about putting their children in someone else's care during the times when they need to be at work. The Bureau of Labor Statistics indicate that the number of married working women with children under 18 years of age increased 34 percent in the past decade. The national figure is that 56 percent of married women with children under 18 are working. In my thesis project, I studied dual provider families in Berks County. Among the group sampled, 37% of the Berks County Extension clientele were in dual provider families. And whether you are a dual provider or not, at some point you will need to leave your child and may suffer separation anxiety.

The real issue is that there needs to be a supportive loving relationship between parent and child. This means that working parents and child caregivers need to work together closely. There needs to be a partnership between parents and provider that supports the child-parent relationship. One of the times that this is most important is during the time you "drop off" your child at the day care, babysitters or even grandma's!

It really isn't until about the age of three that a child has a confident sense of his or her own separateness from anyone else. So it's not surprising that during those first years, separation from the person a child feels closest to can be upsetting. Parents and caregivers both need to know that daily separations from the parent are going to be hard for both parent and child. Here are some tips to make that time easier.

Telling children what to expect and keeping to schedules are important ways of helping children adjust. It may be helpful to allow an extra five minutes to take your child into the home or the building yourself. Help your child take off outdoor wear and help them get settled. Give your child a hug and a reminder that you will be back later. Little rituals like that can make a big difference.

Most important is your consistency. It is only when children learn, day by day, or from babysitting to babysitting, that their parents will come for them. This builds a sense of trust that is so important for an easier separation. Sharing information can be a big help in a comfortable separation. If something unusual or stressful has happened at home, a child care provider needs to know about it in order to understand changes in a child's behavior. In the same way, if a child has had a difficult day away from home, parents need to know about that too.

I have found that all through life it is the "good-byes" that are much more difficult than the "hello's." I doubt that those feelings will ever reverse. But we can certainly work at making the good-byes a happier time, especially for parents and children by establishing a close partnership between parents and caregivers.

Video For Spinners

ELIZABETHTOWN — The Ewe-nique Fiber Guild of the Elizabethtown Area hosted a seminar on hand spinning, Saturday, March 19. Judy Pfeiffer, from Landenberg, Chester County, conducted the seminar. The theme of the seminar was "Spinning for Uniformity". With her extensive background in the fiber arts, Mrs. Pfeiffer included color theory, a discussion on proper fiber preparation and care, and special techniques of novelty spinning like Navajo Three-Plying.

Judy Pfeiffer began her career working in the graphic/fine art field. Then eleven years ago, Judy's husband gave her a loom as a gift and that launched her into her present profession. She now raises a fine flock of black border leicester sheep, sells her own hand-spun yarn, designs hand-woven garments, and teaches hand spinning and weaving. Judy has studied with some of the best fiber artists and herself has a wealth of knowledge.

Persons interested in viewing a video of the seminar showed call 717-367-4151.

Egg Salad Week (the week after Easter Sunday) is a springtime culinary sensation because egg salad can be so much more than chopped hard-cooked eggs mixed with mayo. Instead, moisten with yogurt, sour cream, cottage or cream cheese or your favorite dip or salad dressing. Add crunch with chopped vegetables, nuts or seeds. A pinch of an herb can turn bland into grand. For a hearty dish, stir in cooked pasta, rice or diced potatoes.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

With my mind way off somewhere else, while my hands forked up loose hay from the heifer feed alley, the sound caught me completely by surprise.

High-pitched and loud, the sudden series of alarmed peepings erupted from almost right under my feet. In the shadowy light of the pens in the bottom of the old bank barn, my contact lenses had to refocus a couple of times before they found the source of all the ruckus.

One, tiny, newly-hatched, all-black, chick scrambled away from my intruding feet to the safety of her irate mother's soft breast feathers. Even while backing off to safety, her fluffy, mite of a baby scampering underneath, Mamma Hen grumbled threats at me under her breath.

Well, what an appropriate Easter surprise. Just in time, too, though both the chick and the holiday are early by comparison to some years.

There's no doubt that the birthing season is upon us. That it runs paralled with the emotions of rebirth and renewal that comes with the celebration of Easter has always seemed fitting.

Still another birthing has mixed up a couple of spring rites of the household. We have, by gosh, a new version of the Easter Bunny.

This one comes, not with soft cottontail, but a long slender one which curls around the body. Though it has four legs, it doesn't hop — except maybe for up on my cushioned office chair the moment I depart to go hang up laundry.

And it delivers. But not the traditional eggs.

We have an official, life-sized, honest-to-goodness, Easter Cat. A cat who hides surprises around the house. And we go after and hunt with our baskets in hand.

The Easter Cat came into being recently, when barrel-bellied Monkey, the housecat, scouted out and claimed for her own a slightly-opened closet drawer in a kid's upstairs bedroom. Though removed repeatedly, the cat whined and paced well into the night, driving the college kid, who was staying up late studying, batty.

Obviously, she was in advanced stages of labor. And, the cat's insistence on either going back upstairs to that drawer, or beginning delivery on the bottom step of the stairs, finally got to the studying student. She tossed aside the books and designed a "nest" of soft, old rags in the drawer for the cat.

By morning, our household mouths to feed had grown by an even half-dozen kittens. Basket in hand, the student gently retrieved kittens and proud mother, relocating them to the warm, dry, cozy basement.

Within an hours, our idea of warm, dry and cozy was rejected by the Easter Cat in favor of her more discriminating preference. Full of purpose, one by one, she moved each kitten.

To her carefully selected spot behind the living room couch.

Our attempts to return the babies to the basement brought a repeat performance. Remembering a mother barn cat who actually killed her infants by dragging them up, down, and from place to place, we backed off and allowed the cat to have her way. But, after about a week, and the kittens doubling in size, I strategically placed narrow cardboard boxes behind the couch, blocking admittance. Gently cradling them in a basket, I again moved the babies to the basement.

The truce held about two days before the basement kitten box showed only empty space. This time, I found the growing pile of fur behind the living room chair.

We're running out of boxes. And patience. Besides, there's no where to hide the traditional Easter baskets full of candy, as the kids always expect me (even at their ages!) to do.

All the hiding places are full of kittens. Or boxes.

Seems to me that an Easter Bunny which just leaves eggs would be keeping much closer with tradition.

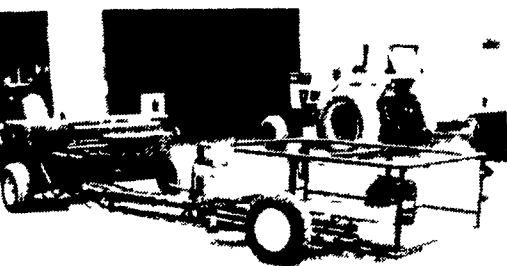

And, the lone one hatched at the barn has proven to be a lot less hassle than what the Easter Cat hatched in the house.

Turn Hard-Cooked Eggs Into Flavorable Feasts

What would Easter be without hard-cooked eggs? You probably have fond memories of your family's traditional rites of coloring, decorating, hiding, hunting and ultimately eating these symbols of spring.

But when the Easter sun sets and you're still surrounded by brightly colored eggs, what do you do with them?

Try egg salad. The week after Easter, named Egg Salad week, is dedicated to the dozens of delicious ways to turn hard-cooked eggs into flavorable feasts.

What's in egg salad? Just about anything. To devise your specialty, start with the classic: For 8 chopped hard-cooked eggs, stir in ½ cup mayonnaise or other mostener and a dash of salt and pepper. If you like, add 1 cup diced, sliced, chopped or shredded vegetables such as celery, onion and carrot, 2 tablespoons of a tangy ingredient such as lemon juice, mustard or pickle relish and 1 teaspoon of your favorite seasoning. For more ideas for using hard boiled eggs, try the recipes submitted by readers. I'm always amazed at the variety of recipes we receive from you. Happy Cooking!

SPRING ASPARAGUS AND EGG BAKE

18 asparagus spears
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cup milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ teaspoon red pepper
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
½ cup cracker crumbs
¼ cup melted butter

Cook asparagus spears in boiling, salted water for 10 to 20 minutes or until tender.

In a saucepan, melt butter and stir in flour and salt; blend in enough milk to make a smooth paste. Stir in remainder of milk and cook over medium heat until white sauce is thick, stirring constantly. While white sauce is hot, stir in shredded cheese and red pepper. Stir until cheese is melted.

In a greased 1½ quart baking dish, layer half of asparagus, sliced eggs and white sauce. Repeat ingredients to make a second layer. Top with cracker crumbs mixed with butter. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for 30 minutes, or until mixture bubbles. Place under broiler for 2 minutes to brown top. Makes 5 servings.

Note: For 10 servings, bake 2 casseroles of this asparagus and egg treat, or double recipe, and bake for 50 minutes in a 3-quart casserole.

ANSWER - Joanne L. Erb, Mt. Joy, requested a recipe to make 1 day root beer. Thanks to numerous readers who submitted recipes. Below are two entirely different methods for processing from Mary Kopp, Middletown, and Mary Maxwell, State College.

Homemade One Day Root Beer

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 gallon lukewarm water
- 4 teaspoons root beer extract
- 1 teaspoon dry yeast

Put in gallon jar and set in sun for 4 hours. Chill. Ready to drink the next day.

One Day Root Beer

- ½ bottle extract
- 4½ cups sugar
- 10 quarts water

Mix water and sugar in large plastic pail (pail should be large enough so liquid doesn't bubble out after dry ice is added). Add extract, stir. Add about $2.50-$3.00 worth of dry ice wrapped in cheese cloth. The dry ice will create the carbonation as well as chill the beverage. Serve using a plastic ladle. Great for picnics!

ANSWER - Ethel Snavelly, Purcellville, requested a recipe for cooking beef kidneys. Thanks Nina Leifesto, Colts Neck, N.J., and Freda Hall, York, for sharing yours.

Braised Kidney

- 1½ pounds beef or pork kidneys
- ½ cup unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt (optional)
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup broth, water or tomato juice

Beef and pork kidneys should be washed in tepid water, then split and trimmed of fat and tubes. Halve kidneys lengthwise and slice crosswise ¼-inch thick. Dredge in a mixture of flour, salt and pepper, then brown in butter over medium heat in skillet. Turn heat down to low and simmer with liquid, covered for 20-25 minutes or until tender. Use pan drippings to make gravy and pour over kidneys.

Beef Kidneys

Cut and discard all hard fat from kidneys. Slice kidneys into small pieces. Place in saucepan, cover with water, and add ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon celery salt. Cover pan and simmer slowly for 1 hour. Thicken broth with 2 rounded tablespoons flour to make a gravy. Good served over mashed potatoes or bread.

A Slice Of The Good Life

HARRISBURG — Spring is right around the corner and nearly everyone knows that all that holiday eating and drinking isn't going to look good on the beach this summer.

In fact, some sinners have put on so much weight that their friends can hear them coming around the corner before they can see them!

One way to shed those unwanted pounds is to begin a plan of exercise and a sensible diet that includes plenty of delicious Pennsylvania Apples.

Pennsylvania Apples are the perfect snack food: They're portable, great tasting and good for you.

Apples are also a great way to perk up between meals. Snacking on doughnuts and coffee produces high doses of sugar, fat and caffeine that may supply a brief 20 minutes lift. Apples, on the other hand, contain complex carbohydrates that increase energy and sustain it over a longer period of time. They're rich in fiber and help curb appetites until the next meal.

The apple's reputation for keeping the doctor away is well deserved. Each apple contains only 80 calories and no fat or cholesterol. In fact, the pectin in apples actually works to lower cholesterol by trapping fat molecules and moving them through the digestive system before they are absorbed into the bloodstream.

Studies have also shown that eating one to three apples daily significantly reduces the possibility of colds and respiratory illnesses and lowers the incidence of headaches. In addition, apples offer an extra source of potassium, which has been proven to reduce the risk of stroke.

Apples are also well-known for improving dental hygiene. While there is no substitute for brushing teeth, eating a fresh apple helps to clean teeth and massage gums, reducing the chance of cavities and gum disease. Their non-adherent consistency and high juice content combine to naturally cleanse the mouth of adherent foods and leave a clean, fresh feeling.

With the warm weather fast approaching, a smart diet survival kit includes lots of Pennsylvania Apples. They're easy to carry, store well and come in their own wrapper. And best of all, they look good on you!

Trade Your Recipe For A Shopping Spree

GUTHRIESVILLE — Seven prizes, including a $200 shopping spree at Croppers Market, Guthriesville, will be awarded to winners of Chester County's First Ever Low-Calorie Dairy Recipe Contest.

The prizes will be given at the June 4 cook-off held at Brandywine Hospital Strawberry Festival in Caln Township. The contest is sponsored by Brandywine Hospital and its Weight Control Program and the county and state Dairy Promotion Programs, according to Chairman Karen Gallagher.

Recipes received by May 15 will be initially judged by a team of nutritionists with final judging by persons involved in the dairy industry. By the end of May seven finalists and seven alternates will be chosen to compete at the cook-off.

Effective use of low-fat dairy products, tastes and visual appeal will be given the greatest weight in judging. Originality and creativity are next in importance, followed by ease of preparation and nutritional quality.

Send recipes to Brandywine Weight Control Program, 213 Reeceville Road, Suite 37, Caln Township, PA 19320. For more information, contact Karen Gallagher at 593-5819.

Question - What's the best way to store cocoa that comes in a can? Mrs. L.McM., Chicago, IL.
Answer - Store cocoa at room temperature for up to 24 months.
Question - What is a polyunsaturated fat and why is it recommended for a low-cholesterol diet? P.S., Houston, TX.
Answer - Polyunsaturated fats, commonly found in cooking oils and some soft margarines, are liquid at room temperature. These fats are made from corn, soybeans, safflowers and sunflowers. Research shows that polyunsaturated fats tend to reduce blood cholesterol levels. Professional health organizations strongly recommend reducing total fat in the diet, and replacing some saturated fats with polyunsaturated fats.

Question - What are the proportions for Fines Herbes? A.M.L., Point Pleasant, NJ.
Answer - Make your own mixture of this seasoning from fresh or dried herbs by mixing equal parts of parsley, tarragon, chives and chervil. Add other mild herbs, if you like.
Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.
TIP OF THE WEEK: One pound of butter or margarine equals two cups. One stick of butter of margarine equals ½ cup or 8 tablespoons.

Tempering is a cooking technique important to country cooks who prepare homemade egg-thickened puddings, cream soups and sauces. If whole eggs or egg yolks are added to a hot mixture all at once, they may form lumps. So, stir a small amount of the hot mixture into the beaten eggs to warm them. Then stir this warmed egg mixture into the remaining hot mixture.

Create Colorful Rainbow Nest Eggs

Spring is rainbow season as rain and sunny skies alternate to bring color and life back to the world. Eggs represent the renewal of life and colored eggs have been exchanged as tokens of good will and celebration for centuries. You can highlight these two symbols of spring in your own Eastertime egg decorating by creating Rainbow Nest Eggs. Their glorious swirls, stripes and patches of eye-catching color can enhance your table in a leaf wreath "nest", bring enjoyment as gifts or lend excitement to the Easter egg hunt.

Rainbow Nest Eggs are very easy to make. The technique is simple for children, yet exciting for older hands to create because you never know quite what the end result will be until the egg is unwrapped!

All you need are eggs, a 6-inch square piece of thin cotton cloth or cheesecloth for each egg; twist ties, string, or rubber bands; food coloring and plenty of newspapers to protect your work area.

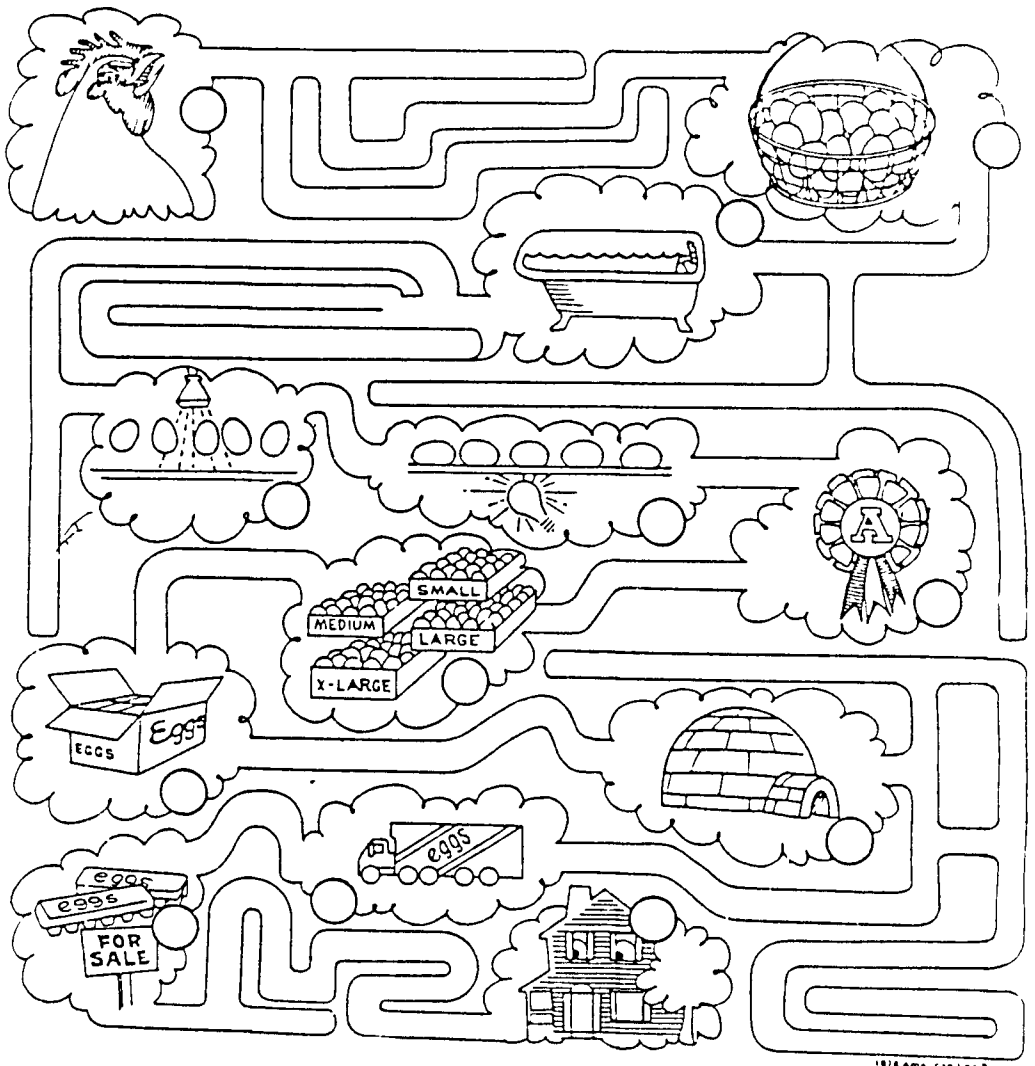

Hard-cook the eggs first.* (Keep the carton on hand for drying and storage.) Then, wet a piece of the cotton cloth or cheesecloth with water and wring it out so it remains slightly damp. (Using cheesecloth will produce a more stippled effect.) Wrap the cloth around an egg, either twisting loosely and fastening it at both ends or bundling the edges together and fastening them at the top. Try it both ways for different results.

Using food coloring directly from the bottle, place drops of coloring into the cloth-wrapped egg in circles, stripes or your imagination's worth of additional patterns. Repeat with other colors, as many or as few as you like. Then, twist the dye-spotted cloth more tightly around the egg so the colors run together to produce a rainbow's swirl of color. Now for the best part-- unwrap the egg to see what's happened! You're likely to be surprised each time. As you finish each egg, set it back in the egg carton to dry.

THE AMAZING EGG: from Hen to Home

Below are the steps that an egg follows on the journey from the hen to the home. Number the pictures to show the same order. Then trace the steps through the maze until the egg reaches your refrigerator. Don't get lost along the way!

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As we drove home through Kentucky, Allen suggested visiting the Corvette assembly plant in Bowling Green. There were only five couples on the one hour tour of the 212 acre plant site.

There are 585 vendors from across the country who supply 2,533 parts, which are then assembled into a $30,000 car. We saw the body mounted on the chassis and then the trim added. There are approximately 70 robots in the plant process. One unique feature is the "plastic" exterior and interior body panels.

It was quite interesting to see them start the finished car for the very first time and put it through numerous tests. Only a limited number are manufactured in order to control the resale value.

While driving north I saw many fields of beef cattle on the hill sides. There were even goats and buffaloes on the snowy slopes. As we neared Lexington we noticed many well-manicured horse farms.

We visited a cousin in Ohio and shared lunch with her family. However, we were disappointed to not find anyone home at my niece's house.

Through writing this article, I have come in contact with several readers. One is a young school teacher from Moatesville in West Virginia. As she visited me here in Lancaster County last summer, I wanted to drop in on her and her family. After hunting a while we were lucky enough to find a neighbor who could give us directions. They have a nice beef farm and after talking for a short time, we arose to leave only to find a heavy snow squall obstructing our view.

On our way home we stopped at Gettysburg and saw the National Park Visitors Center. Here we bought tickets to tour the Dwight Eisenhower house and farm. We were the only two passengers on a big shuttle bus as it drove past the battlefields which were the turning point of the Civil War in 1863. The 189-acre farm has a large rebuilt farmhouse which houses their "accumulations" and also portrays their simple life lived on an enclosed porch overlooking their farm.

TERMS FOR EASTER HAM REVIEWED

We will observe Easter on April

3. That means, among other family traditions, that many of you will serve ham for your Easter dinner.

With all the terminology used, it is no wonder that many people tell me they become confused when trying to select the right ham.

Ham may be purchased whole, as halves, as portions or ends or as slices. If ham is labeled as a half, it must be a complete half with no center slices removed. After choice center slices have been removed, the remainder must be labeled as either butt or shank portions or ends.

You can also select from fully cooked or cook-before-eating hams. Fully cooked hams have been cured and cooked by the packer and they only need to be reheated to an internal temperature of 140 degrees F.

If the label does not indicate that the ham has been fully cooked, assume it is a cook-before-eating ham. It requires cooking to an internal temperature of 169 degrees F. to bring out the best flavor and tenderness.

Ham may be sold semi-boneless, boneless, or shankless. A semi-boneless ham has the leg bone remaining, but the aitch (pronounced H) bone and usually the shank bone have been removed. In a shankless ham only the shank bone has been removed. A semi-boneless ham is usually partially skinned and defatted. A boneless ham may be rolled, shaped, or canned. Shaped or rolled hams are skinless and boneless, formed into rolls or rectangles. Some canned hams are perishable. Canned hams are clearly labeled and will indicate the need for refrigeration.

A term that frequently confuses shoppers is "water added." A curing solution of salts, sugar, and water is injected into the ham during processing to produce the meat's familiar flavor and color. Most or all of the solution is lost during the curing and cooking process. Federal regulations require that a ham labeled as "smoked" weigh no more than its original weight. If some moisture is retained, and this can be no more than 10 percent, then the ham must be labeled "water added."

Country hams or country-style hams are processed by the dry cure method, as was done in early days of our country.

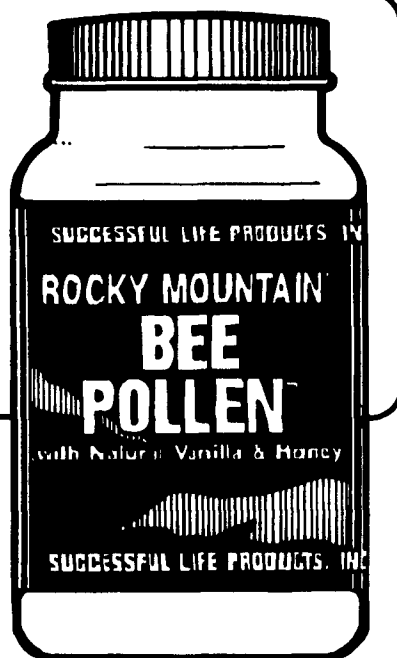

A dry mixture of curing ingredients, mostly salt, is rubbed onto the ham in an amount sufficient to ensure complete penetration of the curing mixture. Federal regulations require at least 45 days for cure penetration and an additional minimum of 25 days for the drying period. These hams require long slow simmering before eating or baking.

I frequently get questions about the rainbow-like colors often seen on ham slices. This coloring is called iridescence; it is caused by refraction of light on the cut ends of the muscle fiber. It is not harmful in any way. It does not indicate that the meat is old, spoiled, or anything undesirable. It is just the way the light strikes the meat.

For the correct time and temperature for cooking the Easter ham you select, consult the label on the ham or a cookbook and use a meat thermometer.

Give Yourself The Advanced Nutrition of Bee Pollen

with Rocky Mountain™ Honeybee Pollens™ the only double-cracked bee pollen granules sold world-wide.

88 Year Old Marathoner

Noel Johnson

Noel Johnson, 88 year old marathon runner, and World's Senior Boxing Champion obviously knows the secret of good health and a long life. The international celebrity, author of the book "A Dud at 70, A Stud at 80", is delighted to talk about it "How did I do it? Its no secret," says Noel. In the chapter, "Everyone's Entitled To My Opinion," Noel tells what worked for him. He credits a natural diet, a daily exercise regimen and Rocky Mountain Pollen, his favorite brand of bee pollen, for transforming him from a worn out old man with a life-threatening heart condition into a superbly conditioned racing machine.

Facts About Honeybee Pollen You Should Know . . . Fresh vs Processed

Nutrition conscious Americans must also be aware of the inferior quality of foreign pollens imported into this country. Foreign techniques of preservation drastically reduce potency.

Most of today's imported bee pollen has been microwaved to prolong shelf life. The logistics of harvesting and shipping bee pollen from abroad results in Americans purchasing at least five-month old pollen. Older pollen from foreign sources also initially suffers a great loss of nutrients due to the necessary drying process (i.e., baked, heated, microwaved, hot-aired or sun dried) of pollen harvested in humid climates—plus an additional 50% loss of nutrient content due to age, improper storage and shipment without refrigeration. One year old bee pollen (unrefrigerated) loses 76% of its effectiveness due to large losses in the early months caused by improper storage (without refrigeration).

Conclusion: If you want the best bee pollen, do not buy foreign-imported bee pollen!

Rocky Mountain™ Bee Pollen Granules Are The Very Best!

1. Only double cracked bee pollen granules sold worldwide
2. Only scientifically blended pollen, harvested in as many as 35 states
3. Refrigerated immediately upon harvest
4. Never heated or dried
5. Preserved by freezing
6. Produced by the oldest and largest harvester in the USA —perhaps the world

Rocky Mountain™ users tell us . . .

Your bee pollen is all you claim it to be. I thought all bee pollen was the same, but there is no comparison! I have never experienced such energy in my body." LBH

"I had arthritis in a very painful state in my left foot to the extent that I was limping quite noticeably. After eating Rocky Mountain Bee Pollen, the arthritic pain has completely vanished! I am now able to walk normal." Rev. DAL

"I really think your pollen is helping my hypoglycemia. The headaches I had in spite of the diet the doctor had me on have sure let up. I use 1/2 teaspoon every morning. FMW

"Our dog, Duffy, a 4 lb. poodle, had deteriorated to the point of being unable to drag himself over a 3" step. Since putting 1 tsp pollen in Duffy's food, he no longer has any arthritis." RM

...Important Pollen Information...

"Health Freedom News" in an April 1984 article entitled "Bee Collected Pollen" stated bee pollen in a raw state with its outer husk intact cannot be digested by the human body. "As a result bee pollen will pass through the body with the potent, pure pollen still encased in the grain. However, the largest pollen distributor in the United States, Successful Life Products® is marketing a pollen blend harvested in the high desert regions of Arizona and elsewhere. They have perfected a process that cracks or breaks the two outer husks enabling vital nutrients to be digested easily by the body. Because of the rigid quality controls, they produce the finest bee pollen products in the world today."

Hints For Homemakers

Question - Do you have any hints for making a good angel food cake at 6000 feet above sea level?
Mrs. S.B., Ennis, MT.

Answer - Unfortunately, there is no general rule that applies to recipe adjustment for high altitude use. If you are using a package mix, high altitude directions for 3500 to 6500 feet will be specified.

Question - What's the best way to measure cream cheese? V.B., Las Vegas, NV.

Answer - Measure cream cheese by weight. Use a small kitchen scale. It isn't accurate to spoon into a glass measuring cup to the desired ounce level.

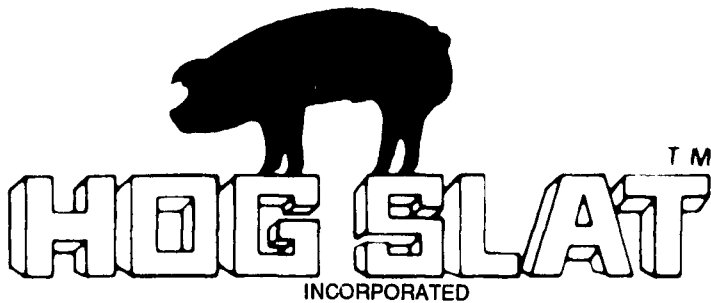

Question - What is the malt in a malted milk and is it high in cholesterol? M.L., Reno, NV.

Answer - Malt usually is processed from barley, but may be from other grains. The same kind of barley malt used in malted milk concentrate, breakfast foods, malt syrup and coffee substitute may be used to make beer. Malt has a moderate amount of fat, but is not a source of cholesterol.

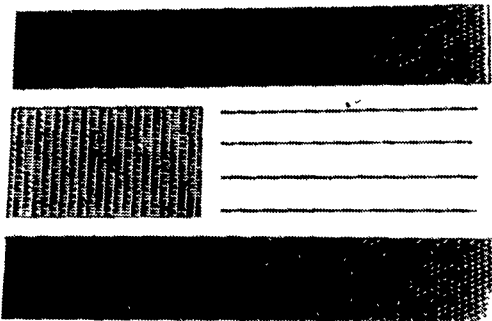

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

TIP OF THE WEEK: The edge of a knife will wear best if you use a wooden cutting board. However, use a nonabsorbent plastic board to cut raw meat, poultry and fish for food safety and cleanliness.

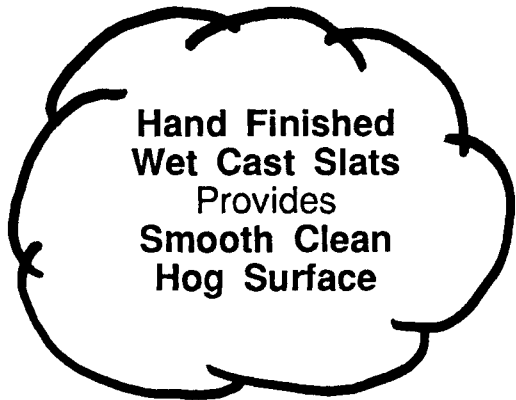

Eggs are a original homespun food found in households across the country. Besides their versatility, eggs are appreciated as an economical source of good nutrition. For instance, when Large eggs cost 90 cents per dozen, they're only 60 cents per pound. And, two large eggs provide 30% of the U.S. RDA for protein along with many other nutrients.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Glamorize any meal with a quick microwave sauce. Take Easter dinner, for example. My Easter dinner will feature ham with a tangy-sweet sauce -- a combination of maple syrup and cranberry sauce. I have Cranberry Maple Sauce frozen and ready to reheat for basting the ham as it roasts and for passing at the table. I'll also serve a simple dessert of angel food cake with ice cream and a dollop of Mocha Dessert Sauce. The sauce is made ahead too and is waiting in my refrigerator. Too many sauces to pass spoil the specialness, so I'll wait for another meal to glamorize fresh asparagus or broccoli with Deluxe Mustard Sauce. Instead I'll use this flavorful sauce to make a variation of creamed potatoes. Those too will be done ahead, so they'll need a quick reheating before dinner. Today's recipes are good examples of three kinds of sauces that microwave well. A fruit-based sauce like Cranberry Maple Sauce is easy to combine and heat in a microwave-safe measure. Use a large enough measure to prevent boilovers. Stir well to soften cranberries and blend in mustard. Store the finished sauce tightly covered in the refrigerator until before serving. Reheat right in the same container or transfer to a microwave-safe serving dish before reheating. Deluxe Mustard Sauce is made like a microwave white sauce. Don't be tempted to skip cooking the flour with butter -- that simple step eliminates a starch taste in the finished sauce. Stir at the times indicated. Each time, stir thoroughly until sauce is smooth to avoid lumps in the finished sauce. Use a wire whisk for best results. This sauce, too, can be made ahead, stored and reheated like the first one. Mocha Dessert Sauce shows how a microwave melts ingredients quickly and conveniently. On the range, you'd have to use a heavy pan and stir constantly for about 10 minutes as ingredients melt together. In your microwave, it takes about a minute (maybe two, in a lower wattage oven) and one good stir to make a rich, velvety -- but not too sweet -- chocolate dessert sauce. Go ahead and sauce up your Easter dinner like I plan to. Or use these sauces with other foods. Suggestions follow each recipe.

Cranberry Maple Sauce
1 can (16 ounces) whole cranberry sauce
1 1/2 cups real maple syrup
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
Dash of ground cloves (optional)
Break up cranberry sauce in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or casserole. Stir in remaining ingredients. Microwave (High) 2 minutes. Beat with wire whisk to blend in mustard and soften cranberries. Continue microwaving (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until boiling. Stir well. Sauce may be made ahead and refrigerated or frozen. Makes about 2 cups.
To use: Brush on ham or turkey towards end of roasting time. Heat remaining sauce and serve separately.
Each 2 tablespoon-serving: 121 calories, 0 protein, 0 fat, 31g carbohydrate, 12mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.
Deluxe Mustard Sauce
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 cup chicken broth
1/4 cup skim, 2 percent or whole milk
2 tablespoons dijon-style mustard
Dash white pepper
Melt butter in microwave-safe 4- to 6-cup measure or deep bowl by microwaving (High) 30 to 45 seconds. Stir in flour and cumin; microwave (High) 30 to 45 seconds or until mixture is bubbly. Gradually stir in broth and milk, mixing until smooth. (A wire whisk works well.) Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes, stirring after each 1 1/2 minutes, until boiling and thick. Stir in mustard and pepper. Season to taste. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

To use: Serve sauce separately with roast lamb or roast beef or with almost any vegetable. Or combine with cooked drained vegetables -- such as broccoli, green beans or cauliflower.
Each 2 tablespoon-serving: 41 calories, 1g protein, 3g fat, 2g carbohydrate, 119mg sodium, 9mg cholesterol.
Mocha Dessert Sauce
1 package (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate chips
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup water
1 teaspoon instant coffee granules
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Place chocolate chips, sugar, water and coffee granules in microwave-safe 1-quart measure or casserole. Microwave (High) 1 minute. Stir until mixture is smooth. Add more time at intervals of 15 seconds if necessary to soften chocolate. Gradually stir in sour cream and vanilla. Makes 2 1/2 cups.
To use: Serve warm or cold over ice cream, angel food, chocolate or white cake or brownies.
Each 2-tablespoon serving: 87 calories, 1g protein, 5g fat, 10g carbohydrate, 6mg sodium, 8mg cholesterol.
Chocolate Pecan Dessert Sauce: Omit coffee granules. Along with sour cream and vanilla, stir in 1/4 cup coarsely chopped toasted pecans.
Questions and answers-
Q. My Use and Care Guide says to stir liquids before heating them. Why?
A. Stirring liquids before heating can help prevent sudden boilovers, which can cause burns.

Water, coffee and other hot liquids that appear calm will occasionally erupt when removed from the microwave. This is a sign of "superheating." The liquid is hotter than 212 F boiling point, yet shows no sign of surface boiling because the air bubbles that trigger boiling have evaporated. This will most often happen in microwave heating of liquids in deep cups or containers, but it also happens in conventional cooking. To prevent "superheating" do the following: Before heating, mix air into liquids by pouring the liquid into the container or by stirring the liquid. Immediately before reheating, briskly stir still-warm or cooled liquids. Questions for Joyce? Do you have a question about microwave cooking? Send it to Microwave Minutes, % Extra Newspaper Features, P.O. Box 6118, Rochester, MN 55903. Please include a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope.

Two Career Family Copes Successfully

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — Traditionally farm families have held to the belief that family life is most ideal when both husband and wife work together on the farm, but more and more farm families are becoming two career families. And many like Dale Hershey, a Manheim farmer, and his wife Dot, a teacher, think their careers differences can actually enhance family closeness.

Sure their family life has had to have some adjustments in meshing their two separate careers, but the Hersheys view them as positive changes.

The Hersheys began farming 20 years ago on the family homestead that had been in the Hershey family for five generations. After four years, they moved to Oregon for two years where they worked with migrant workers. Dot said, "That's when I decided I loved teaching." So they moved back on the farm where Dale worked while Dot could earn her B.S. in elementary education at Millersville University.

After Dot was finished with her schooling, Dale decided to return to school. They moved to State College where Dale received a B.S. in Community Development and his Master's in Rural Development from Penn State University. In the meantime, Dot taught first grade to provide the family income.

After graduation, Dale took a job as the Penn State extension agent in Clarion. After two years, Dale yearned for wide open spaces and farming on his own. After negotiations with his dad, Dale and his younger brother formed a partnership to take over the family farm. In 1980, the Hersheys returned to the Manheim homestead with their children 2½-year-old Sarah and two-month-old Jonathan.

Dot said, "When Dale decided to come back to the family farm, it was with the understanding that I would not become a partner in the farm." Dale agreed and stated that he actually preferred that so they'd have something else to talk about at the dinner table rather than who was milking the next day or rehashing a calf's birth."

The Hersheys agreed that Dot would be a stay-at-home Mom, but that their shared parenting activities would continue. Now, Dot refers to that era as "Pea Soup Time." She said, "I couldn't see for the fog. We had underestimated the demands of starting up farming." Dale immersed himself in work. Their shared parenting concept dissipated as Dot found herself almost totally responsible for caring for their two preschoolers and baby Derek who arrived in the family the following year. Just to get out, Dot worked one evening a week at a Self-Help International Gift Shop.

Sometimes she helped on the farm by driving tractor and throwing hay bales. "I didn't mind that," she recalls, but I did not want Dale to depend upon me to help on the farm on a daily basis."

Dot admitted that although she intended to stay at home and recuperate for a year or two after their youngest entered school, it didn't turn out that way.

Things changed when their oldest daughter Sarah was nearly finished with first grade. Then the Hersheys decided she could benefit by having more individualized help by attending Manheim Christian Day School. "We were impressed with the school," Dot recalls, "but our budget was tight and we didn't know if we could afford to send her." When the Hersheys mentioned their reservation to the principal they discovered that a parttime pre-kindergarten teacher was needed.

After much discussion, Dot decided to accept the teaching job. "The position was ideal for me," Dot said. "My youngest was three and it took some juggling with babysitters and scheduling, but when I got back into teaching, I realized anew how much I love it. The following year, there was a first grade opening at the school and since first grade is my first love, I thought I'd better snatch the opportunity to teach it."

By then their youngest was old enough to enter the preschool program. Dot's transition into full-time working proceeded smoothly. She said, "My class was small and compatible. I came home energized."

Dot believes teaching at the same school her children attend offers her children a wonderful advantage. "Since my kids attend the same school where I teach, they can drop in occasionally for a hug or some encouragement. They see me at work, they know what I do. It's an unique arrangement."

This year, her second in fulltime teaching, is more stressful. She explained, "It's a larger class with more special needs." She points out another possibility for this year being harder may stem from her mother's death from cancer this past year and her dad also has been diagnosed of having cancer.

Some days when Dot comes home from a full day of teaching and Sarah.

Sarah and Jonathan finds lots of hiding places for an Easter egg hunt on their farm.

she finds herself inwardly hoping, "Please, don't let anyone need me for awhile." She said, "I know I'm too tired when I overreact to small things like the children not putting away their lunch boxes or not hanging up their coats." Dot said, "Everyone needs to pull more of their load. The children know they must make their own beds and lay out their clothing the night before so that morning take-offs run more smoothly. I want my children to be independent. "Even if I was not teaching fulltime, they'd still need to do those things because I've always been determined not to have them dependent on me."

Meeting the challenges of coping with balancing home and career life remains a daily job. "I realize the children are giving as much to family life as we are. They have chores like folding laundry, emptying garbage and setting the table. She finds her most difficult chore to get done is ironing.

Although all her children's physical needs are met, Dot said, sometimes she doesn't have the mental time and energy to think about what is going on inside their heads. I question, "Are all their spiritual and emotional needs being met?" She adds, "I'm an idealist. I want all my children's needs to be met. I constantly question, "Am I being everything I should be?"

Like many other career women, Dot finds some former jobs must be neglected. She said, "I don't do a lot of gardening like good farm women are supposed to do." She recalled when their third child was an infant, she was feeling up to her ears with so much work. In three weeks, the peas would need to be harvested and she fretted over how she could manage to do them. Dale told her, "You don't have to do them just because we live on a farm and have the land." Then he went to the garden and pulled them out by the roots. "Imagine," Dot rolled her eyes and with her voice aghast mocked, "He pulled them three weeks before they were ready to be picked?"

The garden has been a concession, she said, because fresh vegetables are better from the garden. She does freeze corn, can grapes, peaches and applesauce.

Through hard work, milking three times daily, good management and "a lot of luck," the Hershey brothers have built up their herd from their 1980 rolling herd average of 15,500 pounds of milk to 24,300—the highest in Lancaster County and the fifth in the state. Both Dale and his brother Steve have been named "outstanding farmer of the year by the Manheim Chapter of Young Farmers." Dale said his college background has given him a broader scope of farming and beyond and although it does not help in technical skills, it has aided him in problem solving. He has a dream to someday use his training in agricultural and rural international development.

Dale said, "I always set high goals for myself and as soon as they are within reach, I set them higher." He attributes his goal setting to a teacher's influence, his dad and his mother who set high standards for him. But Dale views biweekly salary. Sometimes when they receive a large check for their commodities, they're tempted to give themselves a bonus, but they refrain because there is always added expenses that the farm needs to make up. They believe that outside income should not be poured back into farming but used for household and family expenses. "It's crucial that the farm provide enough money for the family to live on. "If the operation is no longer profitable, than I want to change, not ride it to death.

With typical honesty, Dot admits growing tired of no long vacations and being tied down weekends, but she adamantly supports her husband in their rural lifestyle. She said, "I love living on the farm, watching the birth of a calf, seeing the cycles of the year change, harvest time—I love it all and I'd never want to live elsewhere."

of more importance than achievement is his ability to enjoy what he is doing. "Work is fun," he said. "I don't want to get so big that I lose control and can't enjoy it."

Despite their impressive accomplishments, Dale said the most discouraging thing has been that cash flow is still tight. He sees many farmers selling out. He admits, "Sometimes it's scary, but I'm cautiously optimistic. I don't expect farming will ever be easy. Throughout all generations they have experience hard times and lighter."

Dale enjoys keeping computer records and seeing that financially the business is profitable even if they are cash poor. The Hersheys say that they along with their peers desire to provide more luxuries for their children. They'd like to budget more into family living, but Dale is conservative businesswise. He pays his brother and himself a

She thinks it's neat that the children observe their father working on the farm. As a teacher, she observes that many children have no idea what their dads do on their jobs.

Dot said, "If you take all the parts of our life and add them up, we come out satisfied. We're very fortunate to have vocations that are complementary to our lifestyle because family life incredibly important."

There's A MIRACLE Under the SUN.

AGRI TECHNOLOGY! We believe that modern methods combined with the MIRACLE of growth provided by the SUN will continue to make farming America's most important industry. For that reason our logo/symbol depicts a modern M under the round SUN. MIRACLE FEEDS Inc. Your By Product Specialists has combined nature's best products with human technology to bring you PROGRESS and PROFITS.

"Your By-Products Specialists" WHAT ARE WET BREWERS GRAINS?

By Products from the brewing, food and other related industries represent a valuable source of nutrients. Miracle Feeds markets these by products both in Canada and the United States.

The lowest cost producer benefits through the Miracle Feed cost reduction by producing programs designed to enhance productivity.

In the brewing, at best, only the highest quality feed and other cereal grains are used. Wet brewers grains are the portion of the grains that remain following the extraction of carbohydrates that takes place in the brewing process. They provide protein, fat and unsaturated carbohydrates as well as essential minerals.

Aluminum Bodies

by OMAHA STANDARD

Backed by more than 60 years' experience in truck body manufacturing, this is the aluminum body that sets the standard for the industry. With 92 3/4 inches of unobstructed inside width, this rugged, lightweight body lets you haul more grain or bagged or palletized commodities and save fuel doing it.

With 60" or 72" high, vertically corrugated, splice-free sidewalls, three-piece full opening rear doors, swing-out header, trailer-type aluminum flooring and "I" beam cross members, this body's built for rugged field work and continuous road hauling.

"Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up.

ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS

20' Gooseneck Trailer

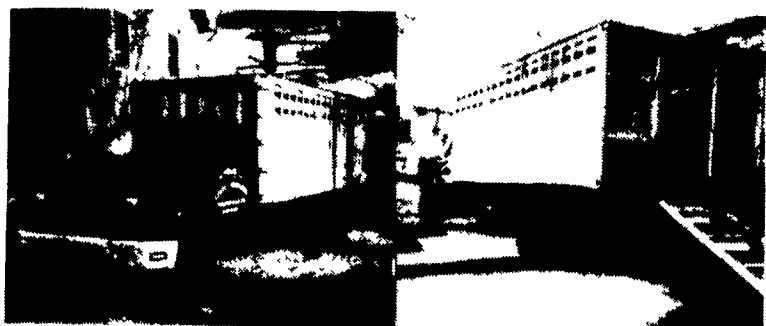

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE - Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a live-stock trailer.

White-New Idea Introduces New Cultivator

COLDWATER, OH — A new no-till/conventional-till row-crop cultivator was recently introduced by White-New Idea Farm Equipment Co.

White's new 379 No-Till/Conventional Till Row Crop Cultivator is designed for today's changing tillage practices. To best utilize soil types a cultivator must be versatile for operating in conventional, minimum, no, ridge and strip tillage conditions.

The White 379 is designed to operate in conventional and conservation-planted fields. A large 18-inch-diameter coulters with dual-depth bands cuts through trash, residue and controls gang operating depth. Fourteen-inch-diameter disc hillers cut residue beside crop row and can be set to move soil toward or away from a row. The spring-cushion chisel-plow shank with wide sweep clears grass and weeds between rows. This combination provides a clean, simple design for plug free operation and faster cultivating speeds.

The 379 features a large screw crank for quick and easy gang-depth adjustment. Six-inch-wide parallel links, 7"x7" main-frame toolbar, and easy-adjusting weight-transfer springs provide the weight and strength for cultivating no-till crops. Ridging attachment can be used to form ridges in fall or make and restore ridges as you cultivate. Extra-large crop shields can be added to protect small crops and cultivate faster. The 379 cultivator is available in 4-row, 6-row narrow and wide, 8-row narrow rigid, and 8-row narrow 170-degree flat-fold sizes.

Lambing Season Looks Rosy

MONTGOMERY CO. — Mike Fournier, Montgomery County Extension Agent, says 1988 should be another good year for the sheep industry. Prices for lambs and wool have remained high and feed costs are relatively low. How you manage your flock over the next two months will determine how much money you make (or lose) next year.

Fournier offers the following suggestions for your lambing season:

- Increased feed to ewes. The last few weeks of pregnancy are critical in lamb development. Ewes in good condition should be fed about one quarter pound extra grain per day. Thin ewes need a little more.

- Crotch all ewes. This selective shearing allows you to watch udder and vulva development more closely and also helps the lamb find the udder more easily.

- Give booster shots. If your flock has already been vaccinated for enterotoxemia and tetanus, annual booster shots should be given prior to lambing. Read and follow directions on each immunization product.

- Set-up lambing pens. It's a lot easier to have the lambing pens set up before the first lamb is born. Accessories such as heat lamps also should be ready to go.

- Stock the medicine chest. Make sure you have all lambing supplies such as iodine for dipping the navel; petroleum jelly for helping with difficult deliveries; frozen colostrum, catheter and syringe for feeding weak lambs; antibiotic uterine boluses to prevent infections; ingredients for an electrolyte solution to treat scouring lambs.

- Set-up creep area.

- Use heat lamps sparingly. Most lambs do not need a heat lamp at all. Very few need supplemental heat more than a few hours. Overusing heat lamps can cause two problems.

1. Lethargic lambs that tend to stay under the lamps instead of

Demand Strengthens For Polled Herefords

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Confidence and optimism in the cattle industry is growing in response to positive market trends. The Polled Hereford breed also is experiencing a rising demand for breeding cattle. Concrete evidence of this demand is the increase in the number of Polled Herefords sold at public auction and a strengthening in the prices they demanded.

For the first six months of the 1987-88 fiscal year, Polled Hereford bulls brought an average of $1,935, which is nearly $300 more than Polled Hereford bulls brought a year ago. In addition to the higher prices, there have been 9 percent more bulls sold publicly this year.

"We're seeing a strong commercial market for our Polled Hereford bulls," said Dr. T.D. Rich, president of the American Polled Hereford Association. "That is due in part to many commercial cattlemen stressing the essential characteristics for profit potential, including production efficiency, forage utilization and reduced labor requirements.

"Commercial cattle feeders are also responding to pressure from the meat packing industry for optimum carcass size, uniformity and eating quality," Rich added. "This is bringing greater market potential for modern Polled Hereford bulls."

The American Polled Hereford Association also is seeing increased activity in nearly every area of breeder services. Memberships for the first half of the year are up more than 10 percent. Registrations are up by 1200 cattle. Polled Hereford breeders are documenting performance on more cattle, and recordings of range bulls destined for the commercial market are up 30 percent.

"I would expect that the positive gains made by Polled Herefords in the last several years will continue for the foreseeable future," Rich said. "Commercial cow-calf men are engineering more productive, efficient cows with profit potential, and Polled Hereford breeding meets their needs."

getting-up and eating.

2. Burned-down barns.

• Separate twins and singles. Ewes nursing twins and triplets require much more feed than those nursing a single lamb. Put ewes with multiple offspring in a separate pen and feed them more.

• Dock early. Don't wait too long to dock lambs. It should be done within the first week. Some shepherds do it as early as the second day. If you use rubber bands, leave them on for only a day or two, and then cut the tail off with a sharp knife. Follow docking with a tetanus antitoxin shot.

• Separate rams from the rest of the flock.

"DO I GET RESULTS FROM MY AD?"

"You bet!" Gary Madey, Madey Farms, Somerset Co. advertises a list of tractors every week. Last week he sold one to a man from Bloomsburg & one to a man in Littlestown.

"I had a tractor that I couldn't give away last year. I finally advertised it in Lancaster Farming - had a man come down from Syracuse, NY to look at it - but ended up selling it locally! Keep my ad in - it works!"

NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968
F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel.
Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting.
No electric heater
plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

Continuous Duty Rating:
26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

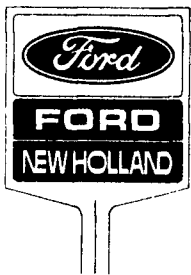

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

ADJA FOAM MARKER

A long lasting Foam Marking System that leaves highly visible strips or balls of foam. The ADJA Foam Marker is a new concept in foam generation which eliminates the need for compressors, pumps, or solution tanks, etc.

The simplicity and reliability of this state-of-the-art marker make it the most reasonably priced marking system presently available to the farming community.

Simple electronic controls allow in-cab control of on-off switch, left or right marking, foam mark size, and distance between marks. The ADJA Foam Marker is ideal for use on a variety of surfaces such as summerfallow, stubble, cultivated or disced stubble, green crops, green grass or brown grass. A totally new formula produces foam that will last for one full day or more.

ATTENTION OWNERS OF DYE OR SILVER MARKERS - With the use of a very simple adaption kit the ADJA Foam Marker can be added to your existing system at very little expense. This will allow you to mark with dye or foam, depending on your field conditions

Krause THE FIRST ROCKFLEX DISC IS THE BEST

It Takes More Than A C-ARM BEARING Hanger To Make A ROCKFLEX DISC That LOVES ROCKS

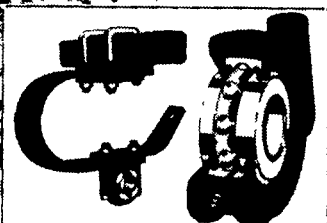

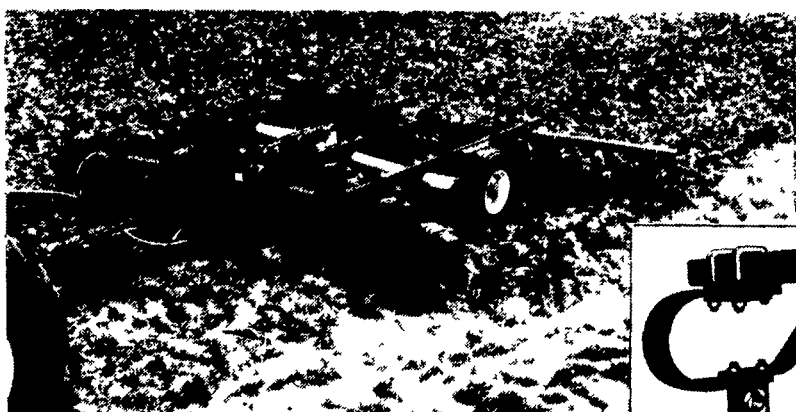

Most disc harrow manufacturers, including Krause, are located in areas that do not have rocks like we have in Pennsylvania and Maryland. Because Hoobers have sold over 500 KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISCS to Pennsylvania and Maryland Farms. KRAUSE knows what it takes to make discs that work and hold up for years of production in tough, rocky conditions.

Before You Purchase A New Disc This SPRING You Should Try A KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISC... They're Field PROVEN...

2242 Rockflex Disc Compare Features FOR CUTTING or FINISHING

- Heavy-Duty Gangs with 22"x6 Gauge Blades, 1½" Alloy Steel Tierod w/Nuts At Both Ends
- Staggered, Overlapping Front Gangs & Tapered Blades On The Outside of Rear Gangs
- Rugged, Extra Strength Scraper Assemblies
- 12'3" Cutting Width - 115 Lbs. Per Blade

THE "ROCK-FLEX" STORY
"Rock-Flex" arms are C-shaped to flex over obstacles - helping protect disc blades and spools from breakage. "Super Seal" regreasable bearings are encased in rubber to absorb shock.

PRO-4 SANITIZING TEAT DIP

Don't kid yourself . . . killing GERMS is only part of the mastitis prevention program! The answer is PRO-4 Teat Dip.

Approved As Of National Mastitis Council Protocol "A", "B", and "C"

Pro-4 formulation recognizes that killing germs is only half the battle in mastitis control. Maintaining good healthy teat tissue is the other half of the battle that must be won to reduce mastitis. The multiple conditioning action on the teat skin of Pro-4 is superior to any teat dip on the market today. Pro-4 Teat Dip has a record of 15 years of safe and effective use.

ENTER THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION PROGRAM NOW!

Beautiful Farmsteads...

A Positive Story

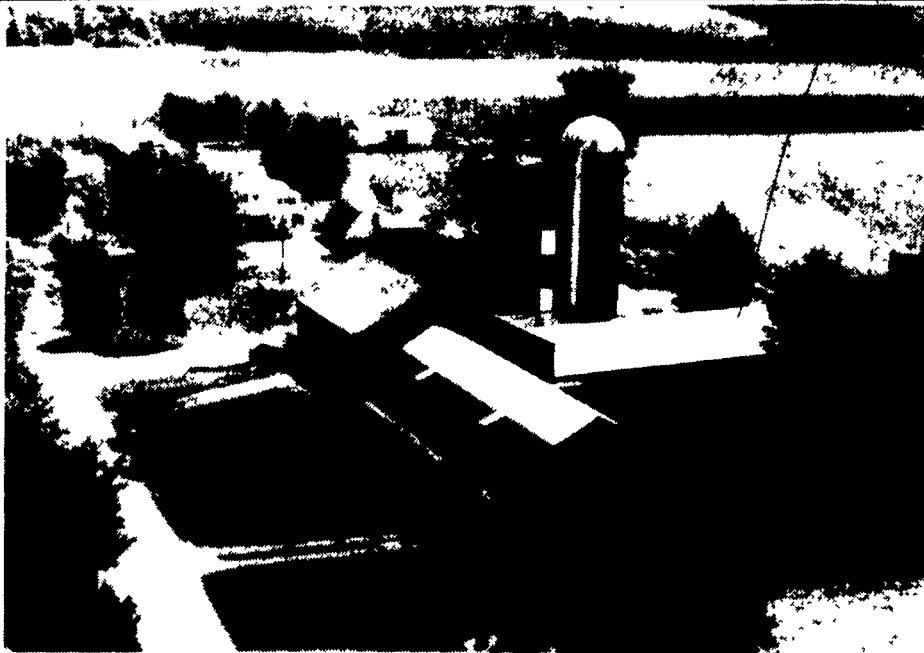

The Northeast is rightfully proud of its dairy industry. Agriculture is our number one industry, with milk its major commodity. Realizing dairying's importance to the area's economy, the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program (NEDFBP) was incorporated November 1983 to honor attractive dairy farms with the Dairy of Distinction Award. The award program is based on the concept that these attractive farmsteads will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, stimulate milk sales and encourage public support for the industry.

The NEDFBP has divided the Northeast into regions, with approximately the same number of farms per district. Each district is under the jurisdiction of a local committee responsible for organizing the judging, awarding the Dairy of Distinction signs and publicity. The program also operates on the regional level through the NEDFBP Board of Directors, which oversees and provide support and guidance to the local communities. All active dairy farms within the region covered by the program are eligible to apply for a Dairy of Distinction award. Applications, available from the program's area secretary, the local committees and other sources such as agricultural publications, must be submitted by April 15 of each year.

Farm judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. This year in the Pennsylvania Program in addition to the district team of judges that does the roadside inspection, the sanitarian for your cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process. Winning farms receive a colorful, aluminum 18x24 inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed on the farmstead near the roadside so passers-by can recognize the farm as a Dairy of Distinction.

Dairy of Distinction farms will be judged every year to ensure they maintain the excellent standards required for the award.

This exciting program promotes agriculture at its best. Broad public awareness of the program is vital to its success and the impact will increase as more consumers see Dairy of Distinction farms and associate them with dairy products sold in stores.

The Daniel Jones Farm, Stoneboro, Mercer county, was one of the nearly 100 farms so honored in 1987.

The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort. Sponsors include cooperative extension, agricultural cooperatives, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses. Dairy of Distinction is a product of people who care about the Northeast dairy industry.

The NEDFBP extends an invitation to anyone interested in promoting beautiful dairy farms. Dairy of Distinction depends on people — particularly farmers who are proud of their farms and want to help the product they produce.

We love the Northeast — its lakes, hills, valleys, mountains, cities...and the beautiful Dairies of Distinction!

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION DISTRICTS

Pennsylvania Is Divided Into These Districts. Approximately 10 Dairy Of Distinction Awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to you. You receive a nice metal sign to put at the end of your lane and a certificate. In addition Lancaster Farming will present this year's winners from Pennsylvania with a color photograph made from a color slide. This year in the Pennsylvania Program in addition to the district team of judges that does the roadside inspection, the sanitarian for your cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process. If your farm is a winner be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends it to Lancaster Farming in time for the awards ceremony.

John and Donald Skinner Capture Top Herdsman Award In Queen Anne's

INGLESIDE, Md. — The Outstanding Dairyman Award went to John and Donald Skinner at the recent Dairy Herd Improvement Association Dinner Meeting. This was determined by a system of points based on specific goals already established based on management practices. The areas being production, calving, breeding conception ratio, herd size and culling rate. The Skinner's herd had a record of 17,807m 4.34% 772f 3.31%p 590p on 74.6 cows.

The top herd in the county for milk production went to Harry Schader and Sons with a record of 91,094m 804f and 602p on 166 cows. Parry Farms had the top herd for butterfat with 17,008m 4.75% 808f 544p on 165.2 cows. The herd that had the greatest increase from last year in fat production was William Messix with 1,551 pounds of milk and 101 pounds of fat.

Chairman Louis Palmatary helped Extension Agent John Hall award the top fat and milk production records for individual cows. Parry Farm had the top cow for milk with 32,758 m and 4.0%. The top cow for fat went to Adam Messix with a record of 22,442m 4.0%.

Queen Anne's County averaged on 18 herds (1517 cows) 17,057m 714f 547p. They were first in the state for fat production.

The following is the listing by age in each breed of the top cows for milk and fat production.

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ — It's in Roger Moyer's nature always to be striving to do better. That's what makes him good at his job for Bank of Lancaster as the senior vice president and chief administrative officer. It also makes him a successful poultry farmer.

When Roger and his wife, Grace, were planning the addition of a new poultry house, they searched for ways to help them manage their layer business. "We wanted to monitor the chicken houses without having to depend on other people," Roger said.

Currently Grace, a former registered nurse, is in charge of the egg processing. In addition, the Moyers have a full-time worker and several part-time workers including their daughters: Jennifer, 13, and Elizabeth, 10.

Their main consideration was an environmental control that would monitor, adjust, and stabilize the temperature in the houses. They also were interested in controlling the ammonia levels, the lighting, and the heat in the egg-processing room.

"There were people selling one system, but no one had a totally integrated system," Roger recalled. Because no company seemed to have a total environmental system package, the Moyers were skeptical when they discovered a firm that did offer an integrated system.

The computerized control system, sold by Automated Environments in Ithica, N.Y., is a modular system comprising computer hardware and software, sensors, circuit boards, relays, and wiring. It can monitor more than 2,000 sensors for temperature, water pressure, ammonia levels, and electrical power, and make thousands of environmental changes such as operating single or multiple fans, baffles, alarms, feeders, lights, and motors. And, it prints out a daily record of everything it has monitored and what changes, if any, were made during the course of a 24-hour period.

A visit to New York

"What sold us on the system was a visit to an upstate New York poultry farm," declared Roger. "The salesman had done all his homework, but talking to the manager of the farm is what sold us."

With the decision made, the Moyers installed the system in their existing chicken house in December and one month later had it installed in the new chicken house as it was being built. Although they haven't had the system for long, already they are seeing positive results.

"This winter when it was really cold the computer maintained a 74- to 76-degree temperature," Grace recalled. "This was unheard of for us in the older house."

The temperature stabilization has paid off in consistent egg production. "Prior to having this system the egg numbers could fluctuate by a couple thousand eggs per day. Production would drop according to temperature changes," explained Grace. "The system has leveled out production."

"In my opinion, eggs produced per bird over a year will increase by using this system," Roger added.

The Moyers also believe that the egg quality has improved too. They can keep the eggs from getting too big by fine-tuning the temperature.

Beginning with air control, the Moyers have increased the system's monitoring functions one by Grace and Roger Moyer in Lititz recently expanded their layer operation to include the house that stands behind them. They incorporated a computer-operated, environmental-control system that monitors temperature, lighting, water, feed, and ammonia levels within the chicken houses.

one. Air quality was their top priority. The system reads the air temperature and operates fans and inlets. The inlets formerly acted in coordination, but now they act independently to let air in as needed.

Monitoring ammonia

The ammonia level also is watched closely. Priorities have been keyed into the computer with

'if this, then that' instructions that tell it to open air inlets to clear away the gases. If the temperature falls to a point predetermined by the Moyers, regardless of ammonia levels, the inlets close. "The computer is very user-friendly," commented Roger. "The control parameters can be set by the user and changed as is desired."

The computer system counts the

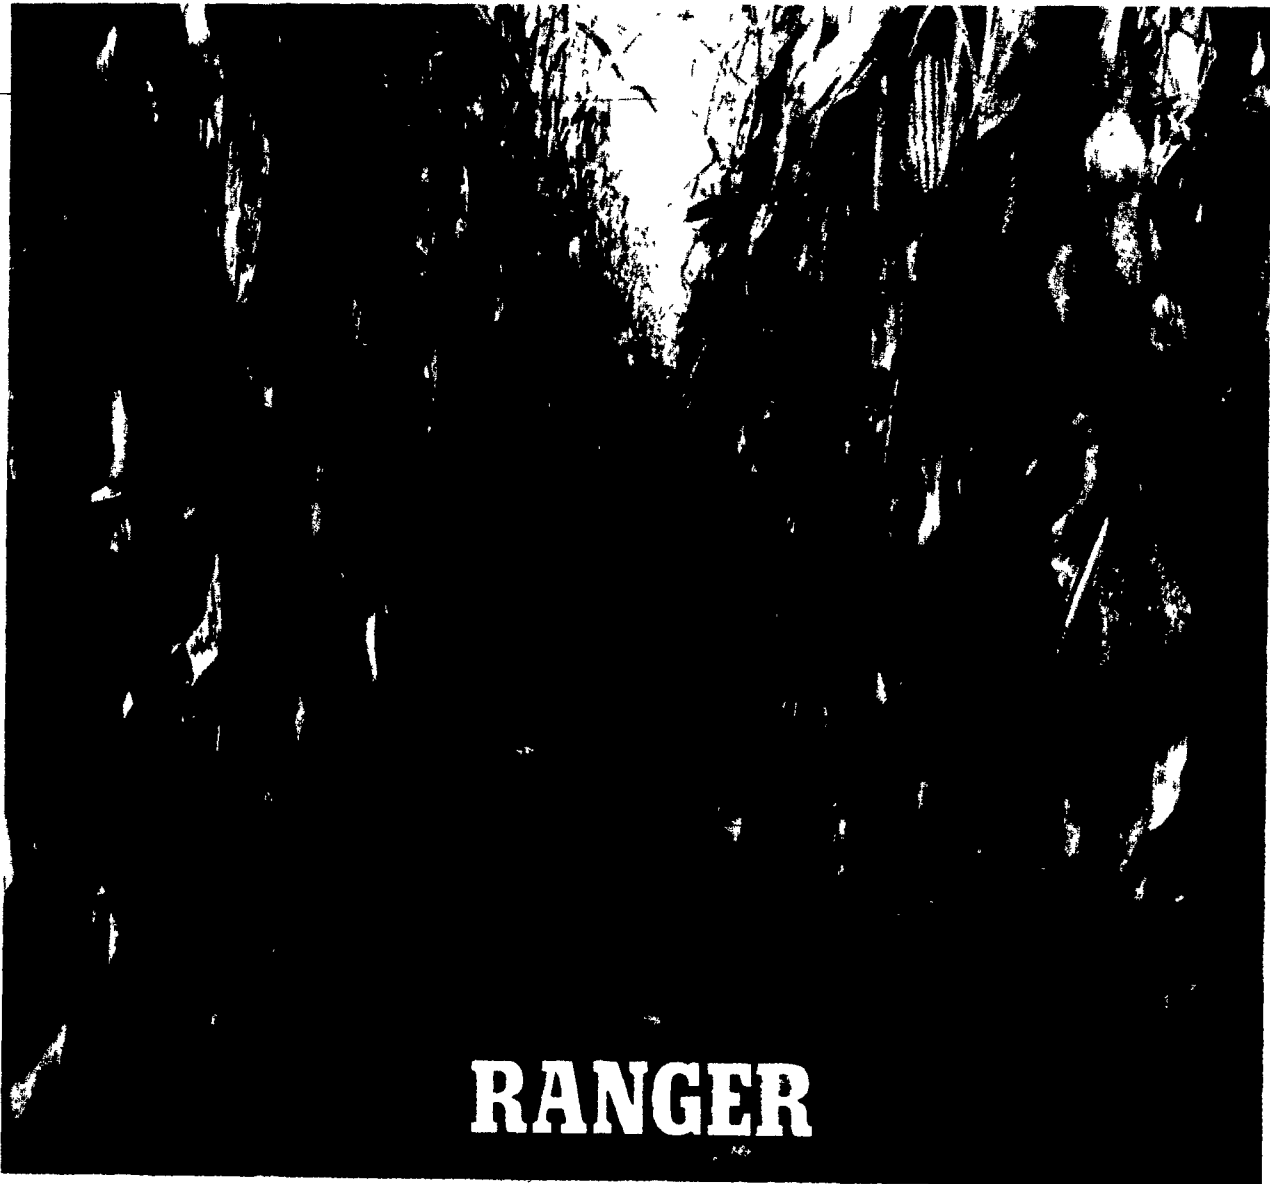

The computer hardware and software are located in a small room in the egg-processing facility. The terminal displays information in color. This allows the Moyers to quickly determine a problem, which is flashed on the screen in a different color. The computer also emits a beeping sound to alert users to the problem.

eggs—within 1 to 1/2 percent accuracy—and monitors the rate of eggs going into the packer. It controls the conveyor belts to the packer by altering the speed according to the number of eggs on the belt. This has cut egg-collection time by half an hour so far, and the Moyers believe it has reduced breakage.

The lighting is part of the environmental system too. The Moyers have a 30-week scheduled programmed into the computer that

Look at the difference atrazine on

Tops and roots control with no carryover.

Two or more pounds of atrazine for quackgrass can cost your dairy operation two ways. First, labeled rates of atrazine can only suppress quackgrass, not really control it. As a result, quackgrass will often come back within weeks of treatment, and year after year after that.

Second, as little as two pounds of atrazine used in any one of the three "corn" years before alfalfa has an almost 70% chance of causing carryover damage—even if you cut back later. Although the damage may not be obvious to the eye, this level of atrazine residue can cause an almost one third tonnage loss and a 20% stand reduction (published university data).

Ranger gives you true control with no carryover

Ranger® herbicide is a better answer for quackgrass. Ranger works differently than atrazine. Sprayed pre-plant before corn on emerged quackgrass tops, Ranger moves down through the plant to its roots and kills the entire root slowly increases the amount of light going to immature chickens to simulate day length. After the layers mature, the lighting becomes intermittent, with the lights on for 15 minutes and off for 45 minutes each hour.

Other computer-controlled functions include water consumption, the feeders, the fly-spraying system, temperature in the egg-processing facility and the egg-cooling room, and feed consumption.

Sounding the alarm

where it flashes on the screen and a beep sounds. Because the screen shows color, the problem can be spotted immediately as it is a different color than the other displayed information.

Most problems are solved by the computer, but when the temperature is extremely high or low or if the water pressure is low, the computer emits a pulse signal that is hooked up to a siren outside the chicken houses that alerts Roger and Grace to a problem. A flashing light in the egg-processing area warns of a problem with the egg flow. At a later date Roger plans to hire a message service whereby the computer can contact them, and they can relay the message to one of a number of people.

When the new system was installed, the Moyers didn't have the old systems removed. So in the event of a computer failure, the new system turns itself off and control of the chicken houses reverts to the original systems. In the case of a power failure, the computer is hooked up to two generators, each of which is capable of single-handedly operating the computer. The computer also is connected to a batter pack which can operate the computer until the generators come on. Although the pack has a half-hour life, the generators usually come on after a few seconds.

One of the aspects that the Moyers like most about the system is the amount of data that is put in their hands: information that either took some time to collect, or facts that weren't available before. Having the information in front of them on a daily basis has reduced decision-making time. This in turn helps them be better managers.

"This system makes a good manager better," stated Roger. "But I don't think this system is a substitute for poor management. In my opinion, the system would foul up a poor manager."

Based on the results that the Moyers have witnessed, they estimated that the payback on their investment will be 14 months.

Kings Markets Contracts To Sell Certified Angus

W. CALDWELL, NJ — Kings Super Markets, a family-owned New Jersey grocery chain with annual beef sales of 100,000 pounds recently has contracted to sell certified Angus Beef exclusively in their 16 retail markets, reports Louis "Mick" Colvin, director of the Certified Angus Beef Program.

The only beef that will be in the prepackaged or the service meat centers that is not Certified Angus Beef (CAB) will be some "natural" beef product in four stores that is being phased out, and some ground beef, Colvin explained.

"We went to 100 percent Certified Angus Beef because for 52 years, Kings has tried to differentiate itself from the masses," said James Meister, president and chief operating officer of Kings. "Certified Angus Beef is unique, and can be identified by our customers as a unique, high quality product."

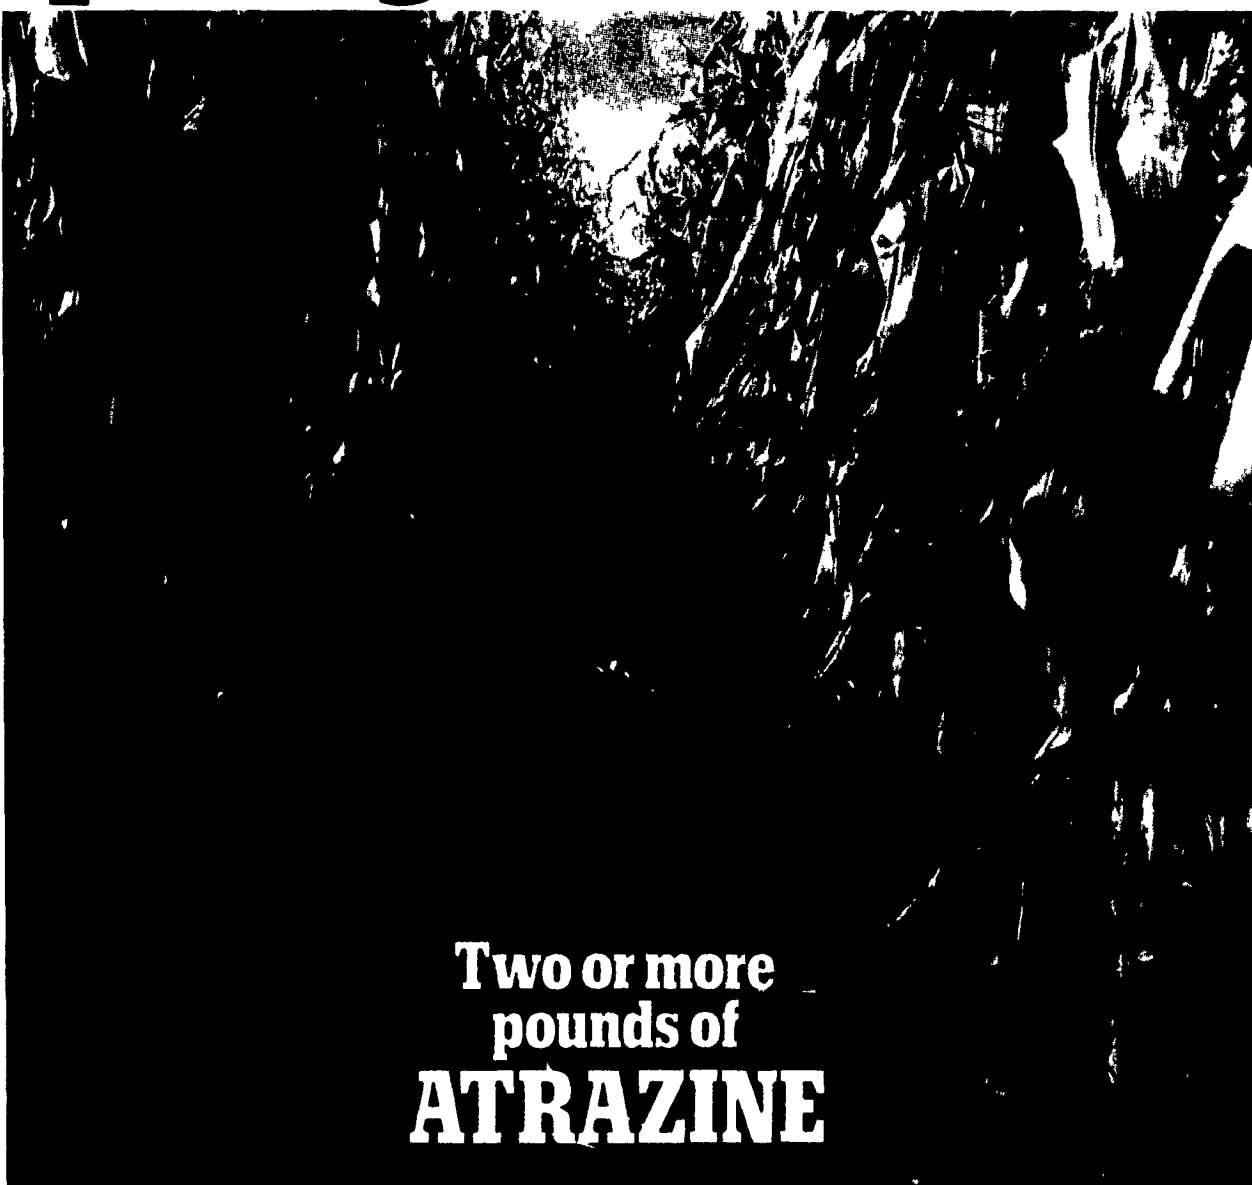

Kings didn't reach this conclusion or make the switch to all CAB arbitrarily. In four of their markets, Kings operate cooking studios where people pay for lessons from professional chefs. Courses cover everything from advanced principles to ethnic food to Easter breads and Passover dishes. When classes were not in session, the cooking studios prepared steaks from both CAB and the regular USDA Choice beef that Kings then sold in their self-service cases. Customers were invited to take part in blind taste tests. They preferred CAB by two-to-one and three-to-one margins, according to Gloria Satur, cooking studio manager.

The Certified Angus Beef is supplied by White Rose Meat Co., of Newark, New Jersey. The distributor that also supplies CAB for the Gristedes Supermarkets across the bay in New York City.

Kings Super Markets, with headquarters in West Caldwell, New Jersey, first used CAB in their service counters about one-and-a-half years ago. It replaced USDA Prime, which was more expensive and more difficult to obtain. Their experience with CAB on this limited basis proved to them that customers preferred it to Prime. Today the CAB sold in the Kings self-service cases is priced about the same as the regular USDA Choice product of their competitors, according to James Meister.

With Certified Angus Beef, the company plans for growth in their beef business. "Our goal is for beef sales to increase by 10 percent during our first year of operation," said James Meister.

between Ranger and quackgrass.

Top growth suppression with good chance of carryover.

system. Because quackgrass grows mainly from these roots and not its seeds, Ranger can give you long-lasting control. And because Ranger does not build up in the soil it won't cause you carryover problems later like atrazine.

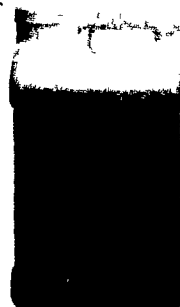

Use Ranger on quackgrass, and cut back atrazine

When you get control of your quackgrass problem with Ranger you can reduce atrazine to much lower rates for use on many other weeds.

Those lower rates will lessen the possibility of carryover damage. Ranger for quackgrass control. You can see the difference.

ARIS Rep Hired By PA DHIA

Louise I. Sible began working for Pennsylvania DHIA as an ARIS Representative on February 7, 1988. Her responsibilities in this position include training and trouble shooting for the on-line computer system, ARIS. Louise will be traveling around the state visiting with veterinarians and dairymen using ARIS as a part of their business operations. She will be assisting these individuals in setting up programs to get information from ARIS which best suits their needs.

Louise has a background strong in computers and dairy farming. She hails from Warriors Mark, outside of State College, PA, and did coursework towards a degree in business at The Pennsylvania State University before beginning her career. Louise worked for 4 years as a computer operator in the College of Business Administration, and most recently worked for

R. Wayne Harpster, Evergreen Farms, where her responsibilities included computer operations for accounting, payroll and dairy programs. DRPC Manager, Jim Boyer, says that Louise will be a great asset to DHIA in general, and most specifically to the development of ARIS services for members of PA DHIA.

After her initial training in State College, Louise will begin traveling extensively throughout the state servicing ARIS users, including veterinarians, DHIA members, and other agribusiness personnel.

Feeding Urea May Reduce Ration Costs

and
J. G. HLUBIK
Department of Dairy and Animal Science

The PA State University
University Park, PA 16802
UNIVERSITY PARK — Lower prices for milk in some markets and somewhat higher feed and other costs have caused dairymen to look for ways to ease financial pressures. Use of ingredients that are more economical sources of nutrients in a well-balanced ration can help maintain margins. Discontinuing the use of oats and including barley or ear corn and more economical protein supplements in the diet may appreciably reduce feed costs.

Further reductions may be possible from proper use of urea in concentrate mixtures. Its use at a moderate level of 1% in a finished dairy feed may lower costs by $8/ton or more. The use of urea as a partial substitute for natural protein is probably better suited to rations containing corn silage and hays or low protein haylages than those with high protein haylages.
The latter contain considerable levels of naturally-occurring non-protein nitrogen (NPN).

An adjustment period of 2 to 4 weeks is necessary to allow the rumen microflora and lining to adapt to the higher levels of NPN coming from urea. During this period milk production may drop slightly, but return to normal if the ration has been properly balanced.
To aid in this adjustment and avoid concentrate intake problems, it is best to gradually increase levels of urea in a finished feed. Start at a level of 0.5% in the feed and build to 1.0% or a maximum of 1.5% over a period of 3 to 4 weeks.

Urea should not be used in a grain mix or TMR containing soybeans, unless they have been properly heat-treated to reduce urease activity. This could liberate ammonia before the feed is consumed. Concentrate mixtures containing over 86-88% moisture may result in some liberation of ammonia from urea via microbial growth. This can reduce palatability and protein equivalent intake by the cattle.

Farm grains that run as high as 20% moisture at times or the addition of relatively high levels of molasses often are the sources of excess moisture in a grain mix.
Urea or urea-containing feeds may be used in total mixed rations, especially if they are mixed at least once daily and not for long periods ahead of feeding.

Since the use of urea reduces the level of high-protein ingredients in a feed it is important that a ration be properly balanced for most minerals as well as protein, energy and vitamins. The total NPN or soluble protein levels should be kept at a level of 33% of the total protein equivalent present in the entire diet (forage plus concentrate). Rumen undegradable or by-pass protein content should be maintained at 35-37% of total protein in the diet.

Inclusion of 4 to 5% liquid molasses or 2 to 3% dried molasses may improve the palatability of ureacontaining feeds fed conventionally.

Proper levels of urea used in a well-balanced ration should not be harmful to health, reproduction or production in adapted animals. If urea is used in rations for milk cows, it should be kept in the ration of dry cows to maintain adaptation. If it is fed to heifers at breeding time, it should be used in the ration of young stock at least 3 to 6 months prior to expected breeding.
Heifers require a longer adaptation period than older animals, especially in regard to reproduction.

Sometimes a combination of urea and rumen by-passable protein sources may provide an economical, as well as nutritionally sound ration. An intake of .25 lb. to .45 lb. of urea per head daily for average to high cows, respectively often may be possible on some forage rations.

NPN source such as urea would be to apply it at proper levels to corn silage at ensiling. While urea can be used on whole plant silage, a nutritionally preferred source would be liquid anhydrous ammonia. Between now and another harvest of corn silage, proper use of urea in a feed could be of value in a well-formulated ration fed under good conditions. Protein concentrates containing urea are available from some feed concerns.

Kent County Honors Top Producers

KENNEDYVILLE, Md. — At the Kent County Dairy Herd Improvement Association Dinner Meeting, awards were presented to the top milk producers and those cows with top records.

Chairman Keith Dixon helped extension agent John Hall honor this year's Outstanding Dairyman, Roy Crow. The award is on management goals based on a point system which each dairyman strives to achieve. Among them are milk and fat production, calving and breeding data, and days dry and herd size. In the last 10 years Roy has won the award 6 times. His record this year was 20,062 lbs. of milk, 737 lbs. of fat, 3.67% test, 3.08% protein, 619 lbs. of protein on 67.7 cows.

The top herd in the county for fat production went to McGuire Brothers. Their record stood at 19,497m 4.04% 792f on 154.2 cows. The high herd for protein production went to All Reed Farm with a record at 19,981m 3.55% 709f 3.25%p 636p on 80 cows. The farm with the greatest increase in butterfat production went to Andelot Farm with an increase of 1,719 pounds of milk and 87 pounds of fat.

The top cow for milk production belonged to Gen Farm. On three times a day milking the record was 31,080m 1,105f and 895p as a 4-year-old. The top fat producing cow also belonged to Gen Farm with a record of 26,400m 1,197f 777p on 3 times a day milking as a 5-year-old. The cow with the top record for protein production went to Fair Hill Farm on their 3-year-old with a record of 20,720m

Kent County averaged on 27 herds (2,725 cows) 17,805m 645p 672f. They were first in the state for milk production.

The top cows in each breed for milk and fat production by age follows:

Manager Gives Three-Step Plan To Beat Low Milk Prices

CAMP HILL — Wall Street's Black Monday has nothing on the price crash faced this year by Pennsylvania dairymen, according to an announcement today by Richard Denison, manager of Farm Management Services for Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

Denison predicts state dairymen will see 40 to 50 cents less per hundredweight in 1988, with Northern Tier and western Pennsylvania dairymen on the high side.

For 15,000 Pennsylvania dairymen that could be a $52,000,000 loss this year alone.

The price slash is triggered by over production of milk in the upper Midwest and West Coast. The low price of butter and cheese milk is used to help determine milk prices nationally. The Northeast is actually short of milk.

State milk prices this spring have been running $1.10 less than five years ago, he says.

Denison isn't preaching doom and gloom, however. He says dairymen can cut their losses with a three-step survivor plan. It

The PFA Farm Management Service keeps records on 3900 dairymen. They could see milk checks cut an average of $4700 in 1988, Denison reports.

But most Pennsylvania dairymen can survive by making the tough management decisions, he emphasizes.

Still, he says, a 40 to 50 cent price cut will push another 250 state dairymen over the brink financially in 1988.

Cornell extension economist Walter Wasserman has an even worse case scenario. He forecasts an 83 cents price cut for the 4,000 Pennsylvania dairymen shipping milk to the New York-New Jersey Federal Order. That could foreshadow statewide losses as high as $84,000,000.

How can dairymen turn things around? Denison recommends these steps:

1. Lock in over order premiums by signing up immediately with Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency or Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency. Denison says only purpose of both is to get more money for dairymen. It will guarantee premiums in the years ahead, he adds.

Both RCMA and MACMMA set a price for Class I milk and ask dealers to pay the difference between their price and the federal order's, he explains.

All cooperative members in Federal Order 2 and 4 now belong. Independent shippers should call RCMA, 1-800-634-3723. It's toll-free. Not sure about co-ops? Ask about the Non-Member Marketing Agreement, Denison suggests.

2. Cull bottom 10% of herd. And right now. Cull prices may never be higher this year, PFA's farm management specialist points out. Then replace with cows that beat the herd average.

Denison says Pennsylvania dairymen must increase milk production per cow and milk shipped per man to stay competitive with other regions of the country.

Michigan dairymen ship 14,259 pounds per cow, compared to 13,831 for Pennsylvania. California dairymen do even better. That 428 pounds extra milk shipped by Michigan farmers would mean $51.36 more per cow and $2568 more annually for a 50 cow herd in Pennsylvania," Denison notes.

It can be done. Top 10% of PFA's dairy cooperators ship 15,979 pounds per cow and 486,370 pounds per man.

3. Feed smart. Don't hesitate to call in extension specialist or nutritionist from top rated co-op or feed company. Second opinion can't hurt even if you have a sound feeding program, Denison insists.

Think least cost feed rations. Extension notes that substituting some barley for corn in dairy ration can save up to $7 a ton. Or substitute ground ear corn for shelled corn. It saves $4 to $6 a ton.

push back protein costs by buying cottonseed and distillers grain in bulk.

Cottonseed, with 19% fat and 22% protein, is a high energy, high fiber supplement selling at $170 a ton that can reduce soybean meal purchases, he says.

According to Denison, dry distillers grain with solubles and 25% by pass protein is rated at 96% of soybean meal in feeding trials, and cost 81% as much at current market prices.

Also get cracking on stuff like hay quality, and then follow up with forage analysis, Denison adds. Both will give big returns on your money. Immediately.

Denison also has good news on cost of farm inputs. Denison sees energy and interest rates holding steady in 1988. On the gloom side, he says feed and fertilizer prices continue to inch up while new tax law will cut deep.

LANCASTER — Fifteen Atlantic Breeders Cooperative sales and service personnel recently received high recognition for their outstanding performance during the last six months of 1987. They were presented with special awards and prizes by Gary Heckman, Atlantic's Member Sales Director. This program encourages and recognizes achievements which improve service and increase sales volume.

Highest award winners were Professional Technicians Tim Wilbert of Greencastle; Ben Wilson, Chambersburg; and George Shue, Gordonville; Coordinator Paul Wemer, Mount Joy; Area Supervisor Willis Ritchey, Chambersburg; and Direct-Herd Representative Curtis Shuey, Massillon, Ohio.

In the sales performance categories, Wilbert was first in establishing new accounts and semen sales increase. Paul Roland of Elizabethtown led in first service increase and average semen fee. Eugene Fleck, Three Springs, was tops in Linear-Mate usage and Vince Arnold, Kutztown, had the highest sampler sire rating.

Among Atlantic's Area Supervisors, Ritchey was first in establishing new accounts. David Zimmerman, New Holland, topped the list for first service increase, average semen fee, and Linear-Mate index. Carl Snyder, Dayton, was first in sampler sire usage.

Other Technicians among the top 10 in total performance were Pat Arnold, Myerstown; Nicholas Brin, Drumore; David Russell, Kinzer; Jim Widmann, New Providence; Charles Hendricks, Elverton; Richard Smith, Honey Brook; and Roland.

In direct-herd sales during the six-months period, Titus Smith of Martinsburg was second and Sylvan Vogelsong, Montgomery, was third. Smith also received a special award for "Sales Leader" in business volume for the entire year, while Glenn Geib of Conestoga was cited as "Most Improved" in sales growth over 1986.

MILT MADISON Penn State

Asst. Prof. of Ag Economics

Egg consumption, continuing its post-World War II slide, has dropped from an annual per capita level of 400 eggs in the 1940's to 250 in 1987. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) projects that next year's consumption level will drop another two percent (equal to five eggs).

There are many possible reasons for the drop in egg consumption levels--increases in household incomes allowing the substitution of meat as a protein source; changes in eating habits to lighter, leaner meals; higher proportions of non-farm households. These have greatly changed the egg's role in family diets.

During the last two decades, the linkage between cholesterol levels in the blood and heart disease has become well accepted by the scientific community and the public. Controversy surrounds the role dietary cholesterol plays in determining blood levels of cholesterol. Recent studies have challenged doctors' blanket prescriptions to eliminate eggs from the diet as protection against heart disease.

Dr. Margaret Flynn, a nutrition professor emeritus at the University of Missouri, has found that adding as many as two eggs per day to a normal person's diet will not increase blood cholesterol levels. After testing 7,166 people, the Egg Nutrition Center in Washington, D.C. found no relationship between reported egg consumption levels and blood cholesterol levels. Reported egg consumption for this group varied from 0 to more than 8 eggs per week. The American Egg Board, promoting these alternative views on cholesterol, has successfully counteracted the negative egg consumption news. The latest dietary recommendations are less harsh for egg consumption. But is this

Last year, researcher Daniel S. Pultier showed that the late 1960's negative cholesterol findings and anti-cholesterol publicity affected egg consumption starting in 1969 and continuing through the end of 1980. His conclusion, that the health issues had decreased egg consumption from the 1960 levels by 10 or 11 eggs per quarter by the end of 1980, represents a sizable portion of the decrease in egg consumption from 1960 to 1981, but it does not account for all of the decrease. Egg consumption was falling before 1969. Further consumption decreases, not attributable to cholesterol publicity, are still taking place.

It would be a long and expensive battle to win back the egg consumers who have decided cholesterol is bad for them. Numerous egg products, developed by university scientists around the country, could prove to be promising routes to increased egg consumption through branded marketing. However, very few of these have been test marketed or adopted by private companies.

Two factors may be responsible for the apparent lack of interest by the egg and food industries. First, the fact that university developments are available to the public may discourage companies from making the considerable investment they would need to commercialize and market a product. Other companies could gain access to the information and introduce competing products without the initial testing and promotional costs.

The second factor restricting the growth in the use of new egg products is the fact that there are very few egg firms large enough to take advantage of these developments. Initiation of a new product form involves large investments in new equipment, testing and promotion. This could have been part of the reason for the Egg Marketing Order failure. Firms did not feel additional egg product research would benefit them because they were unwilling or unable to adopt

Shell egg producers are faced with a declining per capita demand for their product. Population increases have kept total egg consumption stable, but as population growth slows this may no longer be the case. If large producers continue to expand their complexes and add contract production, there will no longer be room for small independent egg processors. Regional production and distribution firms are already making it difficult for many small producers to continue in business. Traditional marketing outlets, such as local and franchised restaurant accounts, are, in many instances, being taken over by larger distributors that offer lower cost eggs.

Perhaps the egg industry will follow in the path of the broiler industry, with large companies dominating production. If the route to increasing egg consumption lies in branded promotion and development of egg products, perhaps the only way to go is with the development of large companies that can generate the resources needed to invest in product and brand development and promotion.

The alternative, smaller enterprises working together to gain some of the advantages of the large companies, would be difficult to implement. It could involve regional organizations of existing companies to service franchise operations, cooperatives for egg product development and marketing that are backed by numerous egg producers, or some other organizational structure to promote cooperation and innovation. It appears that without these types of organizations, the future of small independent egg producer and processor is not very bright.

Bou-Matic®'s Flo-Star™ milking claw improves milk flow for:

• Better cow health

• Faster milk throughput, and

• Better milk quality.

Less agitation equals less chance of milk "mist" carrying bacteria among teats. So the Flo-Star claw can mean less mastitis spread at milking.

COUNTER GIVES YOU MORE

Every season, there's a complex of insect pests waiting to attack your corn crop and reduce yields. And in conservation tillage fields, trash on the surface can provide a home for even more pests. You can't afford to stand by while they eat into your income and potential profits. You need the best protection you can get. COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide.

MORE INSECT CONTROL

Since 1975, tests by major universities in the Corn Belt have proved that COUNTER delivers more dependable control of more major corn pests than any other corn soil insecticide.

COUNTER controls a broad spectrum of pests, including corn rootworms, wireworms, white grubs, nematodes and other problem insects (see chart). And COUNTER gives you guaranteed cutworm protection. See your local Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealer for details on this product guarantee.

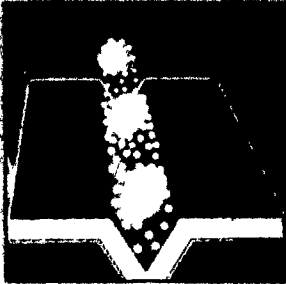

MORE CONSISTENCY

Since its introduction, COUNTER has consistently outperformed all other corn soil insecticides by a wide margin, regardless of years of continuous use. So there's no need to periodically take chances with less reliable products.

MORE ACCURATE PLACEMENT

You can protect your crop and the surrounding environment when you go in-furrow with COUNTER insecticide. You're putting all of your protection to work in the soil where it's needed. And your insecticide won't be scattered by wind during application or washed away by heavy rain. Protect your crop and the environment. Because you care for the land.

MORE VALUE

More control of more insects, more consistency, more performance. With COUNTER you get more for your money.

Atlantic Breeders Credits Membership For Successful Year

BY PAT PURCELL
LANCASTER — The two day gathering of members of the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative was a celebration of the family, according to President David Slusser.

"We are like family. We are all brothers and sisters in the industry and we must work together. Our leaders are like the parents and our directors are like the children. And as my experience with my children has been, we don't tell them what to do, we try to persuade," stated Slusser.

"Atlantic Breeders has completed its best year in its history. We cannot predict the future, but we can work to direct the future." Slusser reported that ABC has grown at a faster rate than the rest of the industry and this growth will bring changes in the next few years.

"We have extended member- (Turn to Page E11) ship opportunities in non-traditional areas and within the next few years we just might see some directors from Ohio, Maryland or New Jersey. It is a possibility," explained Slusser.

Slusser cautioned members that although 1987 has been a banner year for ABC, members cannot rest on that success.

"We can't assume we will always be successful. We must keep striving to progress. For our continued success leadership development and education is a top priority. We must work to get good people into leadership roles and work hard to keep the good people we have," said Slusser.

Hang Together

Or Hang Separately

The president's words were repeated by the keynote speaker, David Simpson, vice-president for the Education Administration of the American Institute of Cooperation. Simpson stressed that an informed and educated membership which supports the cooperative with financing, patronage and leadership is a cooperatives greatest asset.

"The cooperative is the only real platform left for people to have a say in how their lives are controlled," said Simpson.

Members must be open to innovation and to new ideas, according to Simpson. He said the cooperative does better in an environment of change and economic adversity if their members are willing to respond aggressively.

1987: A Banner Year

"We had a lot of growth in outside sales this year which made up more than fifty percent of our $585,000 net income. We did not sign-up new members in 1987, but have since laid out the legal framework and have begun the sign-up of new members in 1988," said Treasurer Dave Mellinger.

Through their partnership with Federated Genetics, ABC was able to enjoy a sizeable tax benefit by deferring taxable income to a later year. This has resulted in more cash on hand for ABC which created a strong financial picture for the coop.

Harry Roth, General Manager, reported a 1.2 percent increase in technician services and a 2.3 percent increase in direct herd sales. Roth said the growth in direct herd sales is a definite sign of market penetration.

Atlantic's priorities for 1988, according to Roth, should be membership needs, employee satisfaction and the sire program.

"The opportunity is the best ever for farmers to have high quality bulls at a lower price. We've got to work to get the farmer to make rapid genetic progress. Herd improvement means a better financial future," said Roth.

Doran Honored

Hal Doran received the extension award from Atlantic Breeders Cooperative. This is not an annual presentation and according to President Slusser, is given when they feel someone is deserving of it.

"Hal Doran has probably done more to further our cooperative cause than any other person in the history of cooperatives in Pennsylvania," said Slusser.

Doran, Associate Professor of Agricultural and Extension Education, is a native of Moscow, Lackawanna County. He is the author of many publications on cooperatives and he has developed many cooperative education programs in Pennsylvania. One of the most recent programs he has been instrumental in making successful is the Co-op Director School.

Atlantic Breeders Cooperative also honored retiring director, Paul King, for his six years of service. Paul and Kathy King, formerly

Dairymen Seek Premiums, Dry Up Dealer Supplies

DAUPHIN — Dairymen don't stage a strike or dump milk in the high tech 80s when dealers refuse to pay their asking price.

"We dry them off," says Harold Ely, Pennsylvania coordinator for Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Batavia, N.Y.

Speaking to dairy farmers at the Dauphin County Ag Center today, the Montrose, Pa. farmer noted that Pennsylvania and New York members are diverting 500,000 pounds of milk daily from a New Jersey milk processor to other handlers. The action was called after Farmland Dairies, Wallington, N.J. refused to pay RCMA $600,000 owed its members in milk premiums.

"That's enough milk to keep Harrisburg in white, chocolate and buttermilk for 17 days; and Pittsburgh, 2 days," Ely explained.

The 22,000-member Northeast bargaining cooperative is seeking premiums from dealers on bottle milk to offset a sharp drop in farm milk prices. The action is supported by Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff and the state's major farm organizations.

Farmland is the only dealer in New England, New York and eastern Pennsylvania actively opposing the RCMA premium program.

"Fluid milk price in January was 57 cents less than a year ago in Federal Order II and is expected to drop another $1.14 by June," the RCMA coordinator said. Similar losses are being experienced all across Pennsylvania, he added.

Prices of Class II, or manufactured milk, also have tumbled.

Cornell University extension economist Walter Wasserman predicts an 83 cent cut in milk prices this year for Pennsylvania farmers served by Federal Order II.

For a dairy family with 70 cows, Ely said, that could mean a $8300 short-fall in income.

Plummeting prices have not been caused by too much milk locally, it was noted. The opposite is actually the case, Ely said. Northeast dealers and processors have been "scrambling" for milk all winter.

The price crash is created instead by a complicated pricing mechanism in federal orders that uses low prices of butter and cheese milk in the upper midwest to determine the price of bottle milk in Pennsylvania.

RCMA asking price to dealers is $14.45 per hundred pounds of Class I milk or 62 cents a half gallon. This compares to a $14.73 minimum paid by southeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania dealers in March, 1987.

Dealers pay dairy farmers the price set by federal orders, then pay RCMA the difference between $14.45 and the order's price. This is then distributed to members. Milk producers in 30 other U.S. markets now receive over order premiums.

"This assures consumers an adequate supply of high quality, local milk," Ely noted.

He reported that Farmland has offered its own premiums to shippers since RCMA began bargaining for dairy farmers this past year.

Milk Market News

BY TOM JURCHAK
Lackawanna Co. Agent

SCRANTON — As expected, following the 50 cent cut in the support price, butter and cheese prices fell down to support levels and pulled the manufacturing grade milk price with them. The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series fell like a rock in February to $10.60 or 31 cents less than last month. That makes the M-W just 74 cents lower in only three months and heading for the support price of $10.33 by May. That would be a total drop of $1.00 in prices in six months.

In Order 2 the Class II price for February took the full impact of the 30 cent drop to $10.62 but Class I prices lost only 22 cents to $13.67 for the month. This made the blend price $11.80 for February. That was 23 less than January and 63 cents less than last February. Forecasters have set the blend price down to $10.60 in May. This would mean an additional drop of $1.20 and the reason many producers are looking to over order pricing for help.

Where It Comes From

and the final revisions have been made to go into the record. Milk production was pegged at 142.5 billion pounds which was only 0.6 percent below 1986. Cow numbers were down 4.4 percent to 10.3 million partly as a result of the Dairy Termination Program. That was 479,000 cows that didn't produce 6.6 billion pounds of milk that would have doubled Commodity Credit Corporation purchases last year. So where did the milk come from? It wasn't from herd expansion so it had to be from increased production per cow and that's what the figures show.

While cow numbers were down four percent, production per cow was up four percent or 526 pounds to 13,786 pounds per cow. Higher production per cow has been happening ever since the first ones landed with the colonists at Jamestown but at an increasing rate. From 1980 to 1986 the yearly increase averaged 228 pounds per cow and now it's 526 pounds or more than double the average of the last six years. This is what reduced the effect of the Dairy Termination Program that removed the 12 billion pounds of milk it was designed for but producers made up for it in increased production per cow.

That's why you got another 50 cent cut in the support price on January 1 and why you can expect another next January unless some disaster changes the price of feed. Total purchases by CCC last year were the equivalent of 6.7 billion pounds of milk or 4.8 percent of all the milk you produced. If production per cow continues to increase at the present rate CCC purchases will be even higher in 1988. In fact, predictions for 1988 have already been revised three times since December and the latest one is over seven billion pounds. But that's not the end.

Total cumulative purchases by CCC from January 1 to March 4 were 3.2 billion pounds of milk equivalent or 41 percent higher than the same period last year. That 3.2 billion is nearly two thirds of the way toward the five billion pounds for the year that will trigger another 50 cent support price cut next January. Is it any wonder that CCC is already figuring what they'll have to pay for butter, powder and cheese when the support price drops to $10.10 next year? And why some forecasters are predicting that the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price series will fall below the $10.33 support price this spring? It has only 27 cents more to go in the next three months and it dropped 74 cents in the last three months. Even 75 cents in premiums won't be enough to make up for the price drop just in the last year with prices the lowest in nine years.

Where It Goes To

The most disturbing part of last year's numbers was a revision in commercial sales. We've come to expect an increase of three percent a year as a result of the promotion progress and the fact that dairy products are still a bargain among food costs. However, when you add up all the milk production; subtract the CCC purchases and changes in storage stocks you increased commercial sales only 1.3 percent last year.

That followed a revised figure of 2.1 percent increase in 1986 over 1985. The big gainer was still cheese but you also had slight increases in fluid milk and ice cream while butter and powder lost some sales. The dairy industry has been cautioned about expecting too much for too long in expanding commercial sales and perhaps it has happened. You certainly can't survive if prices keep falling and perhaps you've reached the point where lower prices and advertising have done all they can in increasing consumption. The well known price inelasticity of milk and dairy products have done all that is possible on the down side. Now let's try it with increasing farm prices and hang on to the new business we've captured in the last four years.

Feed the Hungry

For many people, the best thing that the dairy price support program did in the last seven years was to provide a lot of free butter, powder and cheese through giveaway programs. Perhaps "giveaway" is the wrong word because it takes a lot of time and money to repackage government stocks into consumer size containers and get it to distribution centers where eligible recipients can pick it up. Last month the governor's budget included $1 million for distributing surplus farm products. The problem is that USDA announced that by May they wouldn't have any cheese and powder from CCC stocks to give away and butter would be limited.

Distribution of dairy products was available under the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP) that last year gave away more than 10 billion pounds of milk equivalent in dairy products. Since 1981, when TEFAP began, five billion pounds of surplus food worth $5 billion, has been distributed through the program. This doesn't include all the food stamps; school lunches and breakfasts; supplemental programs for the elderly, women and infants; child care meals and summer camp programs. In total more than one in every seven Americans receive Federal food assistance at least once a year for a total cost of $56 million a day. That's $56 million a day!

Who Will pay

So, what's wrong if CCC dairy stocks are down as a result of the Dairy Termination Program and TEFAP expects only six billion pounds of milk equivalent in dairy products instead of ten billion? What's wrong is that butter, powder and cheese are the most nutritious items among CCC stocks and now anti hunger and church groups are protesting the cut back in giveaways. As a result there are now two bills in Congress to replace the 12 billion pounds of milk taken out of the market by the Dairy Termination Program so there can be enough CCC dairy stocks to give away to the needy. They don't really say that but that's what it amounts to.

So dairy farmers may benefit from a problem that started with surpluses created by Congressional action back in 1977 that has to be corrected by more Congressional action in 1988. This may mean increasing the "trigger" levels of the current program from five to seven billion pounds of milk equivalent and perhaps avoid another 50 cent cut in the support price. Or it may mean a separate appropriation to CCC to buy more dairy products beyond what it needs for price supports.

In either case it would reflect some benefits to producers as the CCC expands its role of increasing demand for dairy products. The only questions are — will the cost be changed to the price support program or to public assistance? Or will dairy farmers expand milk production sufficiently on their own to provide all the giveaway products that the hungry can consume?

Don't Let Imitations Take Place of Traditional Foods

SYRACUSE, NY — Have you ever purchased an imitation food? Modern technology now makes it possible to manufacture a variety of items, including imitation food products, that look like traditional foods. These imitation products may look and taste like many of the traditional foods you have been eating all your life. However, imitations may not be as nutritious as traditional foods.

According to Dairy Council, you can count on traditional foods from the four food groups (milk, meat, fruit, vegetable and grain) to supply all of the 50 or so nutrients needed for good health. Imitation products, however, do not provide all or as much of these nutrients as their traditional counterparts do. In fact, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration defines the word imitation to mean "nutritionally inferior."

Also, many traditional foods, like cheese, have a legal "standard of identity." The standard of identity protects you, the consumer, when you buy real cheese, because you always know you're getting a high-quality food.

Imitation products, however, have no legal standard of identity. Manufacturers are free to change ingredients whenever they want. So, when you buy an imitation cheese, you don't always know what you're getting. You just can't count on imitations to be consistent.

You can spot imitation products if you:

— Remember the three categories of food where imitations are likely to be found:

- Dairy foods
- Juices
- Processed meats

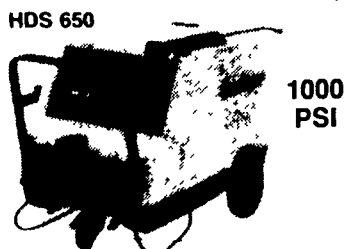

— Look for the word "imitation" on the food package. According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, any food made to resemble or to substitute for a traditional food, and which is nutritionally inferior to the traditional food, must bear the label "imitation."

— Look for the term "non-lairy" on the labels of foods normally made with milk.

Definition

The Expected Progeny Difference (EPD) is a prediction of what an animal will transmit to their offspring. It is derived from a very complicated statistical procedure using all of the performance records submitted by the American Angus Association. The EPD for a trait is expressed in the units associated with that trait, such as pounds of weaning weight. It may also be positive or negative because all animals are compared against the average value of that trait for the entire breed.

To further understand an EPD, it helps to know how the mathematics and number-crunching relates to the biology of genetic improvement. Every beef cow received half of their genetic composition (genotype) from the dam, and half of it from their sire. A measure of the weaning weight is a measure of the phenotype, which is the sum of the genotype and the environment provided for the animal. Further, unlike traits like coat color and horns which are controlled by a small number of genes, traits of economic importance to beef producers are largely controlled by many genes. Genetic prediction seeks to describe the proportion of an animal's genetic composition that is additive; that is, those genes which have an independent, individual effect (positive or negative) on the trait being evaluated. The Estimated Breeding Value (EBV) is the average of all of those individual effects, and the EPD is half of that, since the individual can only transmit half of the genotype to an offspring.

The actual computation of an EPD for a trait uses all of the available information on that individual, including any combination of the animal's own record, the records of the parents and sibs, and any progeny records that are available. The accuracy of the EPD describes how much information was available and how many other animals were directly compared with the individual. Therefore, a sire with many progeny and half-sibs used in many herds will have a higher accuracy value than one with no progeny. However, research has shown pedigree estimates on sires not yet parents are fairly accurate predictors of genetic merit. One exception is those for milk both because the record must be evaluated through daughters and the environment has a larger influence on differences in milk production than on growth and carcass traits. Finally, with each new evaluation, more and different records are being compared, so the most recent sire summary is far more valuable than any previous ones.

The EPD For Maternal Traits

The 1987 Angus Sire Evaluation Report lists three maternal EPD's: weaning weight direct, milk and combined. The direct value is a sire's ability to transmit weaning growth to his offspring. The milk EPD is pounds of weaning weight attributed to the milk production and mothering ability of the dam. The combined value is half of the direct and all of the milk. In other words, the weaning weight is influenced by both the genes for growth inherited from the parents and the milk provided by the dam. The milk and direct EPD's can then be used to accurately describe the influence of both growth and milk production on weaning weight.

A selection program can make effective use of this information to match management and feed resources to desired production goals. The results of such a program will depend on the accuracy of the predictions and the environment provided, remembering these evaluations are based on averages of an entire breed of cattle. The results in an individual herd may, and often will, vary from the average response. However, another important feature is that, since the EPD describes the additive genetic component, these animals will tend to "breed true" for that trait in succeeding generations. For example, breeding an animal with a high, positive EPD for milk means the average sample of genes for milk which will make up half of the genotype in the next generation will remain above average for the breed, regardless of the source or value of genes for milk from the other parent. When that offspring becomes a parent, 1/4 of the genes for its progeny are still sampled from ones above average for milk.

Management Factors

Since genetic prediction now provides an accurate means of improving the ability of beef cows to produce milk, some attention to the added cost of that selection scheme should be made.

Whenever selection goals move to an extreme, some negative factors can usually be identified. For example, when cattle were selected to be small, dwarfism reared its head. Even now we are faced with questions of efficiency and practicality in cattle selected for extremes of frame size. There is no reason to believe selection for extremes of milk production will not cause another problem to arise.

We do know, however, that nutritional requirements will rise at a similar rate to milk production. The total feed requirements for a 1200-lb. cow for the first 3-4 months of lactation are 18% higher for the cow with above average milk production potential compared to the average cow. Daily protein needs are 39% higher and energy needs are 25% higher! Feed costs money, particularly protein feeds. How far do we go, then, in improving milk production before the nutritional cost to realize that production is prohibitive? In an applied sense, that grass-legume hay we are using will probably not be enough for that higher milking cow, so more supplementation will be needed. Silage is a fine source of energy, but how many cows can eat 100 lbs. per day to meet their protein needs?

We may have to answer the question of finding more feed or having fewer cows to feed.

Baa, Baa Black Sheep

Selling one market lamb, like this black one, from a ewe each year will cover the cost of keeping the ewe, according to extension specialists at the University of Maryland. Anything over that is profit. Good managers should be able to produce a 180 percent lamb crop -- nearly two lambs per ewe. The University of Maryland flock at College Park, above, produced a 185 percent lamb crop this spring.

State Performance Tested Bull Sale A Success

By Jodi Richard

Centre County Correspondent
UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. —

Pennsylvania's 15th Performance Tested Bull Sale, "The Keystone" To Genetic Progress in Type Growth Profitability, welcomed more than 100 beef farmers. The sale was held at Penn State's Agricultural Arena, Friday, March 25. The 63 bulls sold were the top 75 percent of all the bulls tested at the State Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

The bulls, auctioned off by Mike Jones of West Point, Ga., were divided into seven breed categories: 24 Angus bulls sold for $53,600, averaging $2,277 per bull; four Charolais bulls sold for $9,700, averaging $2,425 per bull; 17 Polled Herefords sold for $40,200, averaging $2,365 per bull; 13 Simmental bulls sold for $19,875, averaging $1,529 per bull; two Salers sold for $3,450, averaging $1,725 per bull; two I.H.O. Herefords sold for $2,450, averaging $1,225; and a Chianina sold for $2,200. The total sale price was $132,525, with an overall average of $2,105 per bull.

The Penn State-owned Angus bull, PS Tradition 706, by PS High Pockets and out of PS Princess 334, sold for $8,000, the sale's top seller. The Polled Hereford EPH Warrior 711, by IHRY GK Race fairly large rate of mastitis infection. Calves from infected cows grew 4% slower than those from non-infected cows. Dairy producers have shown the higher-producing cow is more likely to contract mastitis. Extension of these facts to poorer growth in beef calves is obvious.

There is also reason to believe problems with udder shape and size will arise, as will those with teat size and suspensory breakdown.

The Summary

Beef breeders have a wealth of valuable information now available to genetically improve milk production potential. Specifying production goals and incorporating selection programs with feed and management resources will be necessary to optimize the improved production.

These bulls were among the 63 sold at the state's 15th Performance Tested Bull Sale. Total sales for the show was $132,525.

and out of EPH Justina 313, was owned by Egleston's Polled Herefords and sold for $7,500. The Polled Hereford, FLF Tempest 7042, by Determination 15G and out of FLF Victoria 81 2155, owned by Falklands Farm, and an Angus, PS Rito 2100 701, by Rito 2100 DGAR and out of PS Playmate 105 105, owned by Penn State, were the third highest sellers at a price of $3,500 per bull.

The bulls were prepared for the sale by Penn State's Block and Bridle Club members. "The Block and Bridle members clipped and cleaned the bulls, and set up the sale ring and the pens," said Paul Bissman, Block and Bridle Club member and Beef Industry Representative. "We put in a lot of hours so that the sale would run smoothly," Bissman continued.

The sale was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Penn State, the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association, and Pennsylvania Beef Breed Associations. The sales special representatives were the Honorable Boyd Wolff, secretary of the Pa. Dept of Agriculture, Dr. Lamartine Hood, Dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, Dr. Max A. Van Buskirk Jr., Pa. Dept. of Agriculture's Director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and Dr. Paul J. Wagness, Head of Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science and president of the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association.

Swine ID Program Proposed

The USDA proposed a national swine identification program in early Feb. The proposal would expand existing requirements so that no swine could be sold, transported, received for transportation, offered for sale, or transported in interstate commerce unless they were individually identified by a USDA-approved method.

The only exception would be for swine raised in a farrow-to-finish operation & taken directly to slaughter.

Farmers Explore Composting As Possible Solution To Excess Manure

BY LISA RISSE

LANCASTER — Dealing with waste, especially when it's in the form of excess manure, is a concern to many conservation-minded farmers. Composting was an option that was explored last week by experts and farmers at the Pennsylvania Agricultural Waste Composting Conference held at the Farm & Home Center.

Mitchell D. Woodward, manure management-Chesapeake Bay Project associate, stressed the immediate need for more information from the Department of Environmental Regulations regarding composting as a means of managing excess manure. Currently composting is not even covered in DER's manure-management information.

"There is some confusion about how to treat composting under the regulations," Woodward commented. "We don't know exactly what should be done."

Compost that is marketed off the farm, whether in bulk or bags, falls under the Pennsylvania fertilizer law, according to information provided by a DER representative, who couldn't make the meeting. To sell the compost, it must be licensed and registered with the Department of Agriculture as a soil amendment or as fertilizer.

If the product is classified as fertilizer, the farmer must provide PDA with a guaranteed minimum nutrient analysis. If the compost is a soil amendment, such as peat moss, the farmer needs to submit a statement of composition and purpose to PDA. The statement must explain what is in the product and be able to prove this with test results. The statement of purpose would declare what the product is to be used for such as soil aeration or moisture retention.

Jim Geiger, owner of Appleton Farms in Ipswich, Ma., is a farmer for whom composting has worked. Geiger works a 350-year-old farm that derives its income from bovine genetics and garden-ready compost. The farm is located several miles from the coast in the middle of a suburban area.

The materials he uses for composting are cow and horse manure, crab shells, and seaweed. Except for the cow manure, the materials are delivered to drop-off points on the farm. The crab shells are mixed with horse manure on a daily basis in order to eliminate odors.

Long rows constructed with a tractor equipped with a front-end loader stretch across a field. There they stay for a two-month composting period and a six-month curing period. They are undisturbed except for weekly turnings with a composting machine that attaches to a tractor. The weekly turning mixes and aerates the row.

When the compost has been produced, Geiger delivers it by the bulk to home gardeners in the area.

When Geiger was exploring his options for composting "I wanted to keep energy-inputs low," he explained. "I also wanted an operation that was not labor intensive. It had to be compatible with farming activities."

Geiger was after a method that would require his attention only at times that were opportune in relation to his farming duties. He wanted to be able to plant fields or fill silos without worrying about caring for the compost.

Geiger is pleased with his composting operation. "I especially like the idea of reintegrating the farm with community. Farms used to be very integrated with community, but we moved away from that. Composting allows the farm to achieve that integration.

"Our fields, our environment, and our pocket book are better for composting," he added.

International Process Systems of Lebanon, Ct., also is making composting work. Lou Naylor, company representative, explained the firm's goals as "producing high-quality compost, having an environmentally sound operation, and having an economical design."

The firm's developers went to Japan for their research and returned with a composting machine that moves the composting materials through the buildings where the process takes place.

IPS owns a steel and a polycarbonate building each with four bays that are 180 feet long, six feet wide, and six feet high. Farmers drop chicken manure on concrete slabs where it is mixed with sawdust. A front loader moves the mixture to the bays where the composting machine moves it to the storage area.

The composting machine currently being used is an hydraulically driven machine that is based on the Japanese machine originally used.

Water is a by-product of composting and ventilation is required in the buildings to eliminate it. Mahler estimates that one million gallons of water are discharged into the atmosphere each year.

Once the compost is ready, IPS bags it and markets it to nurseries.

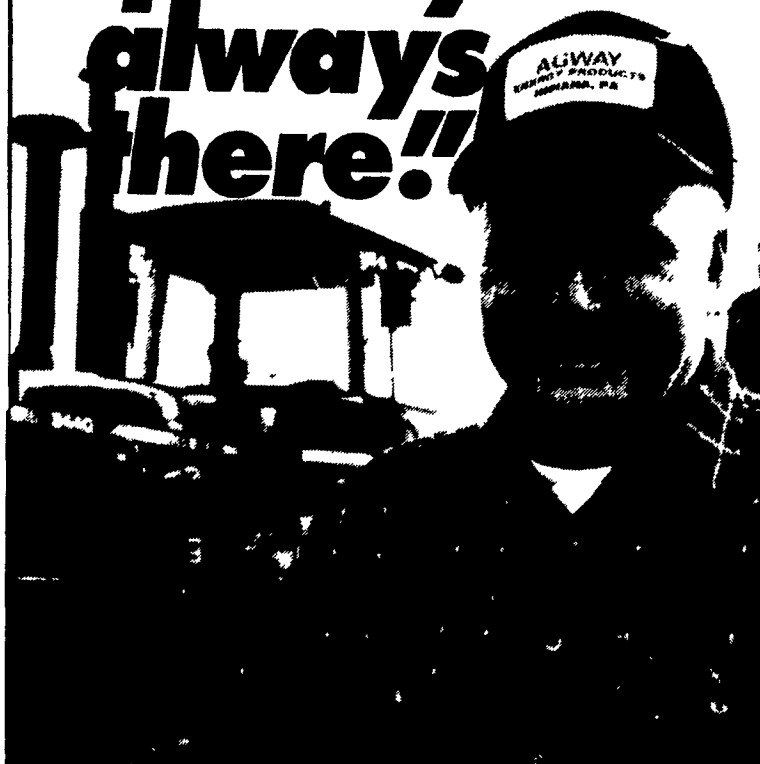

Roger Tuttle, of Compost Management Inc. in Doylestown, Pa., discussed marketing strategies. He stressed that before marketing compost, farmers should match their product to potential customers' needs. "All compost is not the same," he declared. "There are specific parameters for each type of compost."

Compost can be used for soil conditioning, top dressing, mulching, and potting among other things.

Tuttle recommended farmers know everything they can about their product including solutions to possible problems that customers could encounter. In addition, "you must teach them how to use your product," he said. Many times customers don't use the product correctly and blame the producer for disastrous results.

American Salers Sire Summary

The American Salers Assn. has released its first National Sire Summary to its members and the beef industry. The summary features comparative genetic evaluations of 50 fullblood and purebred Sales sires in the form of expected progeny differences for birth, weaning and maternal traits, John Dhuyvetter, ASA performance, research and education executive, said. He added that 871 Salers sires were included in the analysis conducted by the American Beef Records Assn. using performance information processed through the ASA records of Efficiency program. The published report was limited to 50 sires. A copy may be obtained from the American Salers Assn., 5600 South Quebec, Suite 220A, Englewood, CO 80111, telephone 303-770-9292.

Maryland's First Cattle Convention Labeled A Success

HAGERSTOWN, MD — Donning "Beef...Real Food For Real People" hats, visors, and buttons, more than 300 cattle producers and industry representatives attended the first Maryland Cattle Industry Convention and Trade Show on March 25-26, at the Sheraton Inn.

"I can't tell you how long it's been since I've seen representatives from all of the Maryland breed associations at one meeting," said Dr. Emmett Full, Angus producer and chairman of the Maryland Beef Industry Council (MBIC). "With the May 10 check-off referendum vote just around the corner, many cattlemen wanted to show their support for the recent beef promotional activities, while others wanted to see for themselves how effective the promotions have been. It's my sense that everyone was extremely pleased with the information available at the convention and satisfied with how their $1 per head check-off dollars were spent."

Convention guests, including cattlemen, breed association members, industry and agribusiness representatives, attended several informational meetings, including sessions presented by Henry Schmidt, director of marketing and ag development at the Maryland Department of Agriculture; Dr. Gary Weber, livestock leader, U.S. Department of Agriculture; and Dr. Ray Stricklin, University of Maryland Department of Animal Sciences. The speakers covered such topics as marketing Maryland agriculture, efficiency and profitability in the beef business, and beef production practices in Maryland.

Keynote speaker Jo Ann Smith, current chairman of the national Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board and past president of the National Cattlemen's Association, spoke on the impact and effect of the beef check-off program.

Bruce Brendel, left, president of the Maryland Cattlemen's Association, presented an honorary membership to the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Accepting the award was Robert Walker, deputy secretary of agriculture.

vided guests the opportunity to see new industry and pharmaceutical products as well as the latest innovations in fencing and other cattle-handling equipment.

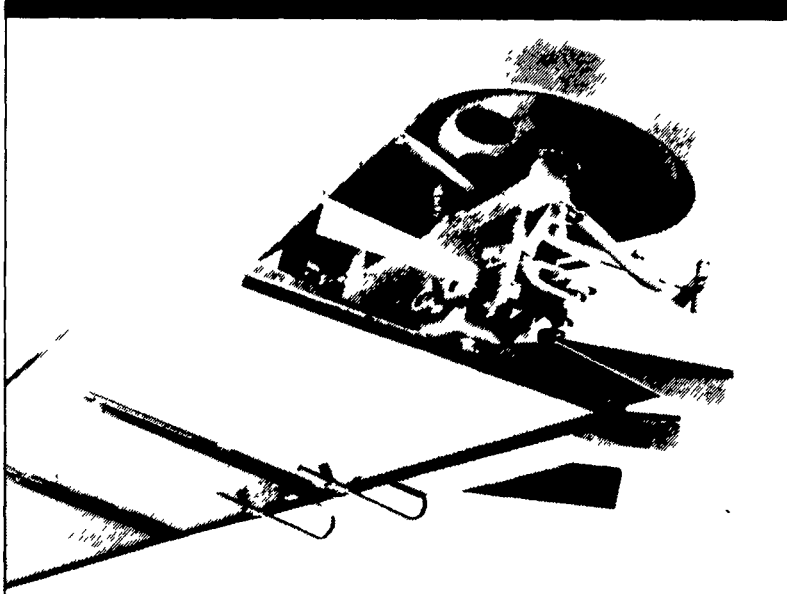

"I couldn't have been more thrilled with the outcome of the convention," commented Dr. Scott Barao, University of Maryland livestock extension specialist and coordinator of the convention. "Everyone walked away with an excellent knowledge of the future of beef production and promotion in Maryland and a new sense of camaraderie with each other. And, to top it all off, there was not one complaint about another 'rubber chicken dinner'. Naturally, guests were well-fed with Maryland beef entrees, including a melt-in-your-mouth prime rib dinner."

Plans are already underway for next year's convention with the hope of including even more Maryland cattle producers.

Carolyn and George Lechluder of Gaithersburg enjoyed visiting at trade show displays at the first Maryland cattle industry convention.

Woods Presents New Convertible Mower

OREGON, IL. — Woods' Model SM2080, two-spindle mower/cutter offers two-position mounting, center pull and offset 67-inches to right of tractor center. Convertible mounting adds versatility and makes the SM2080 mower ideal for specialty mowing jobs such as orchards. For greater maneuverability, the mower semi-mounts on the lower lift arms of standard category-2 tractors rated 40 to 80 hp with 540 rpm PTO.

The SM2080 cuts an 8'4"

(100") swath, and it mows grass and weeds and cuts brush up to 1½-inch in diameter. Other features include two heavy-duty gear boxes and blade spindles, heavy-duty, free-swinging blades, dual 16-inch puncture-proof tires and choice of manual or hydraulic cutting-height adjustment.

For more information on the Model SM2080 mower/cutter, contact Woods, Division of Hesston Corporation, Oregon, Illinois, 61061.

Deutz-Allis, Allied Products Reach Agreement

WEST ALLIS, WI. — Deutz-Allis Corporation has signed a letter of intent with Allied Products Corporation of Chicago (NYSE/ADP) to enter into an agreement under which the White-New Idea Farm Equipment Division of Allied Products will produce a new line of higher horsepower tractors to Deutz-Allis specifications.

The signing of the letter was announced jointly by Roy W. Uelner, president of Deutz-Allis, and Bobby Middlebrooks, senior vice president and manager of the Agricultural Equipment Group of Allied Products.

Under the proposed agreement, which will run for four years, Deutz-Allis is contracting with Allied Products for its White-New Idea subsidiary to produce 150-plus horsepower tractors to augment the Deutz-Allis line. The tractors will be built in Coldwater, Ohio.

The agreement still must be approved by the Boards of Directors of both companies. The final decision will be made by June 30, 1988.

The new tractor line will incorporate Deutz air-cooled diesel engines, Deutz-Allis styling and White-New Idea drivelines. According to both Middlebrooks and Uelner, engineering on the new tractors will begin immediately, with production anticipated to start in the second quarter of 1989.

New Ford Tractor Offers High-Crop Clearance

NEW HOLLAND — The new Ford 7610 Mudder is designed for a wide range of applications requiring high-crop clearance, a narrow footprint, good traction, and/or the ability to move very slowly through the field.

The 86 PTO horsepower unit has a tall 25-inch front axle clearance and 31.2 inches at the drawbar thanks to equal size wheels and tires (13.6x38R2) all around. That also makes for a narrow footprint for working in leafy row crops.

Tread width is adjustable from 72 to 84 inches.

Front-wheel drive gives the 7610 Mudder excellent traction for wet conditions.

The Mudder's a winner at going slow, too. At a rated 2100 RPM, creep speed is 12 feet per minute. These speeds — slower than most if not all competition — are especially helpful in vegetable crops where field workers follow the tractor to pack freshly harvested produce.

Berks Co. Farmer Harvests Record Soybean Yield

OLEY — Although rainfall was somewhat spotty in 1987, the weather certainly seemed to favor high yields for full season soybeans. In that respect, Boonecroft Farms, located in Berks County near Oley, Pennsylvania, harvested a "bin-busting" 74 bushels per acre yield with Stanford Seed's Hytest HT3257. This extremely high yield easily qualified Boonecroft Farms as a member of Stanford Seed's 60 Bushel Club for 1987. HT3257 is an early Group III soybean variety comparable to Pella in maturity.

Scott Taulker, the Boonecroft Farms' manager, was quite pleased with his soybean yields in 1987. A high fertility program, narrow row (6") spacing, and excellent weed control coupled with timely rainfall for optimum pod fill conditions, proved to be the key ingredients in producing 70 plus bushel yields for Boonecroft Farms. Recognizing that soybeans require high amounts of phosphorus and potassium for optimum growth and top yields, Taulker pre-plant incorporated 240 pounds of phosphate and 480 pounds of potash in the field that produced 74 bushels per acre with HT3257. Taulker achieved very good weed control with a pre-emergent application of Dual and Lorox. The field was planted on May 29, 1987, and was harvested on November 4th. Other cultural practices included chisel plow, disc tillage and a 60 pound per acre seeding rate. The previous crop was corn.

Another Hytest 60 Bushel Club winner in 1987 was Robert Reisinger from Ickesburg, Pennsylvania, in Perry County. Reisinger harvested 60.7 bushels per acre with Stanford Seed's Classic II, a late Group III soybean comparable to Williams 82 in maturity. Despite a relatively dry year, Reisinger had excellent soybean yields, with adequate moisture available during the critical pod fill stage. The principal fertilizer for Reisinger's 60 bushel club field was dairy manure which is also a valuable source of organic matter for enhancing the soil's water holding capacity. The field was planted on May 28, 1987, on thirty inch rows at a seeding rate of 56 pounds per acre and harvested on November 14, 1987. Other cultural practices included conventional tillage and a pre-emergent application of Dual and Lorox for weed control. The previous crop was sudangrass.

This hoe drill has compression springs on its hoe shanks that allows it the ability to "give" against field rocks.

Great Plains Offers Multi-Flex Spring Trip Hoe Drill

ASSARIA, Ks. — Great Plains Manufacturing's Multi-Flex Spring Trip Hoe Drill is a premium-quality drill produced to allow seeding in variable farming conditions including rocky, trashy, and dry soil. The Spring Trip Hoe

Drill has the ability to "give" against field rocks thanks to the compression springs on its hoe shanks. This allows the chromium carbide tips to maintain an aggressive planting posture. Superior clamps mean that the openers won't "walk" along the toolbar when encountering rocks. An optional "C-Flex" spring gives the press wheels additional flexibility and strength in rocky ground.

The press wheels and the eight-gauge wheels carry the full weight of the drill, allowing the hoe openers to follow the terrain for seeding precision. Double down-pressure springs ensure that the openers can penetrate into dry soil conditions, creating a deep-furrow configuration where desired.

With three ranks of hoes, each with 21-inch vertical clearance and 21 inches between ranks, this drill does a fine job of seeding in heavy stubble.

The big 2½-bushel-per-foot seedbox in 30 inches and 40 inches widths makes large seeding jobs go quicker.

Two-way flexibility is an important benefit: the tongue can move up or down 4 inches while seedbox wing tips can move through a 7-foot arc without affecting the openers.

Massey-Ferguson Sales Up 42% In January

DES MOINES, IA — Massey-Ferguson recently announced that its North American retail sales of tractors in the 30-plus horsepower market were up 21 percent in the fourth quarter versus the previous year, and up 42 percent in January, 1988, compared to the same period last year.

David Pitt, general manager of Massey Ferguson's North American operation, stated the outlook for North American agriculture is very positive and 1988 could be the strongest year farm machinery manufacturers have enjoyed since 1982.

Pitt went on to say the large increase in tractor sales was due to a better farm economy, farmer confidence and acceptance of Massey-Ferguson's 29 new tractor models, including the award-winning M-F 3000 Series, introduced in late 1986 and early 1987.

At the same time, Pitt announced a new line of hay tool models to be introduced for the 1988 season.

PURINA
MILLS, INC.Dairy Tips By Dr. John Clark

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

To make the best use of all nutrients, the rumen of the high producing dairy cow must be provided enough total fiber from the diet to assure good rumen function and cud chewing. If fiber is from "wet" roughages (silage or haylage), higher amounts of fiber must be fed. If all dry roughages are fed, less total fiber is needed.

Poorer quality roughages, such as drought silage, provide higher than normal fiber and lower than normal digestible nutrients. These poor quality roughages will not support high milk yields without a concurrent loss of body condition. Therefore, proper supplementation is needed to help maintain production and body condition, especially during the late stage of lactation or production and reproduction will be poor the next lactation.

Of course dairymen want to get all the milk income per cow that they can. However, the most consistent profit robber is mastitis and high somatic cell count. By lowering (SCC) linear DHIA reading from 6 to 3, your cows can produce up to 6% more milk or about $100.00 per cow. The National Mastitis Council urges teat dipping with an effective teat dip after every milking.

DO YOU NEED TO ADD $100.00
OF MILK PER COW?
